SEIZE LAST STRONGHOLD OF SANDINO

Brush Aside Sporadic Resistance and Capture Nicaraguan Chief's Works at El Chipote.

STRIKE TIES UP
PORT OF CORINTO

U. S. Ships Unable to Land Supplies for Marines — Railroad to Interior Kept Open.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 27.—American marines today were on the peak of El Chipote and the last traces of Gen. Sandino's occupation of this, his last known stronghold, have been destroyed.

From the crest of El Chipote, a mountain 5000 feet high, Maj. Archibald Young, who led the marines in their advance, signaled all was well with them.

Three days ago Maj. Young advised headquarters that he had established his command of 400 men on the slopes of the heavily timbered mountain. He met with sporadic resistance from Sandino followers, but that was brushed aside as the marines moved cautiously toward the summit.

Fortifications and trenches which Sandino had built to make a natural stronghold the more impregnable, were destroyed, deserted insurgent camps wiped out and the crest gained.

Sandino's followers were understood to have been scattered when the marines gained another objective in their campaign to drive the insurgents into isolated districts, cut off from food and ammunition.

Sandino, who boasted that he would never be driven from El Chipote, was believed to have been wounded in the aerial bombardment which signaled the beginning of the attack on the mountain almost two weeks ago. Aviators who made the attack said 40 marines were killed in the bombardment.

Stedoreos Strike.

Vultures were the only signs of life on the mountain which the marines had taken over. This is evidence that the irregulars left their dead unburied.

All that has been heard of Sandino since then was a report, never confirmed, that he was killed and later more definite advice that he was wounded.

The landing of supplies for the marines has struck a snag at the port of Corinto.

Stedoreos again were on strike after a committee appointed to investigate their grievances reported that none existed. The belief prevailed in official quarters that the dock workers are striking in sympathy of the present political situation in the interior and that the strikers will return to work when labor is sent to Corinto to handle the situation.

The steamer Salvador now is in port with a cargo to be unloaded. The United States ship Salinas also is there with supplies for the marines.

Naval authorities say that the railway from Corinto to the interior, over which marine supplies move, will be kept open and they will permit no disorder at the port.

Factional Press in Row.

A bitter controversy between the Liberal and Conservative press in Managua has developed over the political situation.

The controversy began with a suggestion by the Liberal newspapers that former President Chato Morero should be deported as a disturbing element. The Conservative papers then in turn declared that Gen. Jose Moncada, the former Liberal commander-in-chief, should be deported, charging that he was secretly aiding Gen. Sandino and that he has a son who is a captain in Sandino's forces.

Gen. Moncada, who is the Liberal candidate for President, died yesterday that his son, Aquiles Moncada, is with Sandino.

My son is being persecuted by the Conservatives for political reasons," Moncada said. "He fought with me during the Liberal revolution and was slightly wounded. Later he became the Chief of Police during a time when a crime was committed."

WATCHMAN FIGHTS WITH ROBBER, EACH
SHOOTS THE OTHER

Both Wounded, Ferdinand Stange Grabs Gas Pipe and Beats Jack Fortune Till the Two of Them Fall

VICTOR, VANQUISHED
IN GRAVE CONDITION

Prisoner Admits He Was Attempting to Hold Up Orthwein Motor Corporation, 3016 Locust.

An attempted holdup of the Orthwein Motor Corporation, 3016 Locust boulevard, ended in a pistol fight last night between a watchman, Ferdinand Stange, 2338 Portia avenue, and the robber, Jack Fortune of Kansas City. Both were wounded and are at city hospital.

Stange is in a critical condition with bullet wounds in the mouth, chest and abdomen. Fortune was shot in the chest and was struck on the head with a piece of gas pipe by Stange, who, shot down, staggered to his feet and belabored the robber with the pipe after his pistol was empty. Fortune's condition is serious.

Fortune, who said he was a pugilist, also has been known as Wilson and Wagner, according to police. He came to St. Louis 19 days ago.

Robber Told of Holdup.

His head swathed in bandages, he told a Post-Dispatch reporter that city hospital today he entered the offices of the motor company about 8:15 o'clock, intending to rob the salesmen first and then the office safe.

"I found two fellows in the front office," he related. "I told them 'This is a stickup.' They started to put up their hands but I told them to keep 'em down and act natural. I pulled back my coat and said, 'Then my pistol sticking in my belt.' 'I'm marching them into the rear,' I was going to go through their pockets, leave them there and then go back to the front office to work on the safe."

"But when we got into the garage we saw the watchman talking to another man. They were 50 or 60 feet away. I told him to stick 'em up and get in line with the others. Instead of doing that, he pulled a gun and started shooting. One bullet hit me in the chest. Then he grabbed a piece of gas pipe and hit me with it. When he started shooting, I shot back. The gas pipe closed my right eye."

Salesman's Version of Fight.

The two men in the front office when Fortune entered were Clarence Davenport and Grover Houston, salesman.

"The robber first stuck a pistol into Houston's stomach," Davenport said today, "and then came over to me. He didn't flourish his pistol because there was lots of traffic outside on Locust and apparently he didn't want to attract attention. But he kept his hand under his coat where his pistol was. When he made us go into the mechanical department, I saw the watchman talking to a friend of his, but of course I couldn't say anything. When Fortune appeared, the watchman, he gave an order and then the shooting started. Houston and I ducked behind some pillars and then called police and an ambulance."

Stange, police found, had fired six times and the robber five. Fortune said he had been living at the Regal Hotel, 1909 Market street. A young man and two young women found in his hotel room were held for questioning.

Senate Agriculture Committee Finds "Shade Tree Farmer" Witness Has Paying Investment.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The Senate Agriculture Committee heard a farmer boast today that he had made a 6 per cent return on his property. Dr. Harrison Howe, editor of a magazine for the American Chemical Society, in testifying before the committee on Muscle Shoals legislation, mentioned that he also was a farmer.

"You are a shade tree farmer, aren't you?" questioned Senator Caraway (Dem., Ark.). "You don't live on your farm."

"I live in Washington," Dr. Howe replied, "but I run a farm of 220 acres in Wayne County, Indiana, in co-operation with another, making a profit of 6 per cent on a fair valuation of my property."

"I would like to know your tenant," declared Senator Caraway amid laughter.

BOARD OF ESTIMATE APPROVES
BUILDING OF $525,000 SEWER

Money for Relief Branch in North St. Louis Will Come Out of Improvement Bond Issue.

The Board of Estimate today approved an appropriation by the city of $525,000 for construction of the East Rocky Branch relief sewer in North St. Louis, running from the Mississippi River at Palm street to Blair avenue. The money is to come out of the $57,000,000 civic improvement bond issue.

The Board refused to approve an appropriation of $42,422 for widening and opening Compton avenue from Hill street to Kingshighway Park, Wilmington avenue from East Virginia to Michigan avenues and Bates street from Compton to Virginia, all in Carondelet. The project was shared equally by the city and the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., the National Association of State Railroad and Utility Commissioners, represented by Henry G. Wells, the City Service Co., represented by former United States Senator Charles L. Thomas of Colorado, and the National Association of Manufacturers, represented by James M. Emery.

Single-handed and for 19 days, Senator Walsh fought this gigantic lobby, whose interests amounted into the tens of billions of dollars. It cannot be said that he won, because all indications are toward a drastic amendment of his original resolution. He already has agreed to exclude exclusively intrastate operating companies from the inquiry.

Investigation Appears Certain.

On the other hand, the power and utility lobby cannot claim a victory. It looks as though there will be an investigation and that Walsh will conduct it.

The lobby has had an effect on the committee. For 10 days witnesses produced by the Joint Committee or the other branches of the lobby have attacked every feature of the Walsh resolution. The State commissioners declared that the jurisdiction of the states; investment bankers stated that an investigation would injure the security markets and highly paid attorneys have argued that Congress had no right to make a general investigation of any industry.

Previously the resolution had been adopted after brief debate. The Assembly is controlled by Progressive Republicans who are followers of Senators La Follette and Blaine. An attempt to halt action on the resolution occasioned a demand from several Republicans for fair play for the few Democrats in the Assembly.

WALSH'S POWER INQUIRY LIKELY

Senate Almost Certain to Order Investigation but Will Limit Scope of the Hearing.

INTRASTATE FIRMS TO BE EXCLUDED

Hawes Explains Why He Insisted on Restricting Inquiry to Interstate Corporations.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT, A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The first skirmishes between one of the most effective lobbies ever seen in Washington and a lone United States Senator have temporarily ended.

Hearings before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee on the resolution of Senator Thomas J. Walsh (Dem.) of Montana to investigate the electric power and utility combines were finished yesterday. Monday the committee will decide whether the resolution shall be reported favorably to the Senate, whether it shall be amended, or whether it shall be reported unfavorably.

Until the committee acts, no one can definitely say whether Walsh or the utility lobby has won the preliminary battle.

The Lobby That Fought Resolution

The backbone of the lobby against the Walsh resolution was the joint committee of the National Utilities Association, headed by George B. Cortelyou, former secretary of the Treasury, and former Senator Irvine L. Lenroot of Wisconsin. The other members were the National Association of Railroad and Utility Securities Holders, represented by Frederick H. Ecker, vice president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.; the National Association of State Railroad and Utility Commissioners, represented by Henry G. Wells; the City Service Co., represented by former United States Senator Charles L. Thomas of Colorado, and the National Association of Manufacturers, represented by James M. Emery.

Single-handed and for 19 days, Senator Walsh fought this gigantic lobby, whose interests amounted into the tens of billions of dollars. SENATE VOTES FOR INQUIRY
BY COMMISSION IN S-4 WRECK

Presidential Board and Joint Group From Both Houses of Congress Authorized.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The Senate today voted for an investigation of the sinking of the submarine S-4 by a Joint Congressional Committee as well as by a presidential commission.

In amending the House resolution calling for an inquiry by a presidential commission, the Senate limited the inquiry by that commission to an investigation of safety appliances for submarines.

A motion by Senator Swanson (Dem.) of Virginia directing that the investigation into the facts surrounding the sinking of the submarine with the loss of 49 lives be made by a joint congressional committee instead of by the presidential commission was adopted, 51 to 32.

The resolution now goes back to the House.

It was stated late today that President Coolidge still held to the view that an executive commission should investigate the S-4 disaster.

JURORS CONSIDER
EVIDENCE AN HOUR
TO REACH VERDICT

Former State Labor Commissioner Accused of Protecting Griesedieck Brewery in Making Beer.

TO BE SENTENCED
WEDNESDAY MORNING

Motion of Defendant for New Trial to Be Argued at That Time Before Judge Davis.

Heber Nations, former State Labor Commissioner, was convicted today, for the second time, of conspiracy to violate the Volstead law, by protecting the manufacture and sale of beer by the Griesedieck Brewery in 1923-24. The jury returned its verdict in Federal Court after being out only an hour.

Judge Davis will announce the punishment next Wednesday morning. He can sentence Nations to imprisonment up to 2 years, or fine him up to $10,000, or assess both fine and imprisonment.

At his first trial in May, 1926, the jury deliberated 37 hours before finding Nations guilty. Judge Davis sentenced him to 15 months' imprisonment and to pay $1000 fine, the unpaid amount being figured as one-third of the $10,000 paid for beer graft, of which it was testified Nations received two-thirds. The Circuit Court of Appeals reversed the first conviction because Judge Davis had refused to disqualify himself, on Nations' allegation of prejudice.

Nations, who lives in Jefferson City and formerly operated a daily paper there, was released after the verdict on his $5000 bond, to appear Wednesday for sentence. His counsel announced that a motion for a new trial, and for arrest or judgment, would be filed at that time.

The case went to the jury at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. Judge Davis' instructions were brief, and contained no comment on the testimony.

"You should have due deference for the opinions of others on the panel," the Court instructed. The Court also touched on the expense of legal prosecutions, the probable inability of another jury to try the case any better and the wisdom of a stubborn minority going over to the side of the majority in the interest of averting a possible deadlock.

"Keep Calm, Mindful of Jurors."

"You should approach consideration of the facts in this case with calm and open minds, examining all questions with candor and showing deference to the opinions of others," Judge Davis said. "It will be well to avoid serious controversy, which might hinder your functions in reaching a proper verdict. Also, you are not concerned with the effect and consequences of your verdict."

Judge Davis included in the instructions an explanation of "conspiracy."

"There are two elements to decide," he said. "The first, whether there was a conspiracy between two or more persons, and whether any person committed any of the 17 overt acts charged."

The Court directed that the stories of accomplices may be accepted without corroboration, but warned that such evidence was to be viewed with caution.

District Attorney Brewer, in a 45-minute speech, reminded the jury that Heber Nations, not his brother Gus, former Federal prohibition enforcement chief here, was on trial. He said he admired Gus for his effort by his testimony to save his brother, but he attacked the stories of both brothers, especially as to Heber notifying Gus by a letter of the intended making of beer by the Griesediecks on Feb. 21, 1924.

Counsel Praised Brothers.

Patrick H. Cullen, attorney for Nations, spoke for an hour and three-quarters. He declared the Nations prosecution had originated when Harry Daugherty was Attorney-General and Allen Curry was District Attorney here, and said that under the present Attorney-General, Cullen would not prosecute.

MOVE TO BRING UP
NICARAGUAN ISSUE
AT HAVANA FAILS

Diaz Delegate Refuses to Make Speech Written by Novelist Against U. S. Intervention.

By CHARLES G. BOSS, Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

HAVANA, Jan. 27.—G. Aleman Bolanos, newspaper man representing a group of Central American newspapers at the Pan-American conference, ran into a stone wall yesterday when he tried to bring the question of American intervention in Nicaragua before the conference.

Bolanos, who is a well known novelist and journalist, made his appeal to Dr. Pasos, one of the Nicaraguan delegates appointed by the Diaz Government. He even wrote a speech for Pasos, but the delegate refused to deliver it or to utter any similar sentiments.

This is what Bolanos wanted Pasos to say:

"As a delegate from my country and as Minister of Foreign Relations, permit me to ask the delegates of other countries to support me in a request that armed intervention and economic tutelage of United States in Nicaragua shall cease. The next election should be conducted by a committee composed of representatives of the 21 American republics in order that justice may be assured, and that Nicaragua may take the first step toward a new life."

Bolanos had just received a letter from Estanislao Sandino, half-brother of Gen. Sandino, dated at Puerto Cabezas, Jan. 7, saying word had just been received there of the killing of seven Nicaraguans by Marines. The letter added that, whenever Gen. Sandino scored a success, Marines retaliated by tightening control over civilian population.

G. B. WALL, RAIL OFFICER, DIES
 ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Jan. 27.—Garrett B. Wall, vice president of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad died here unexpectedly last night after a brief illness.

Born in Kentucky, April 6, 1870, Mr. Wall graduated from Washington and Lee University and the United States Naval Academy before beginning his railroad career with the Chesapeake & Ohio as a clerk in the general offices in Cincinnati in 1889. In 1897, he was married to Miss Louise de Montmolin, of Ashland, Ky. He is survived by her and two children, Martha and Garrett B. Jr.

COST $500 A MONTH IN JAIL, WITNESS SAYS

Bootlegger Tells Clayton Court
 Why He Can't Pay $12,500 Judgment.

The high upkeep incident upon staying in St. Charles County jail for five months has depleted his resources and made him unable to meet his obligations, William Anth, a convicted bootlegger, testified before Circuit Judge Mulloy at Clayton yesterday.

Anth had been summoned to court to explain why he had not paid a judgment of $12,500 to Henry Bender, a farmer who lives on Schlueter road, in St. Louis County. Bender had charged Anth, who resides at Denny and Big Bend roads with alienation of the affections of Mrs. Bender, whom Anth later married.

The five-month stay in jail at St. Charles cost him $2500 Anth declared on the witness stand. He said that illness forced him to buy his food because he could not live on jail fare.

"That cost about $200 a month," he testified. "In addition I made frequent week-end trips to visit my family in Kirkwood and the expenses on those trips were from $20 to $25 each. Finally I had my family moved to St. Charles to be near me and that also was expensive."

Anth testified that it was to the late John Grothe, Sheriff of St. Charles County, that he paid the $200 a month for board. Grothe, who died a year ago, was once sentenced to serve a day in jail for undue leniency to liquor law prisoners sent to his jail from Federal Court. In an effort further to probe Anth's statement of his expenses at the jail, the court will summon the Sheriff's widow to testify at the next hearing on the Bender judgment.

DECLINE IN EXCISE TAXES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Income from Federal Excise taxes for the calendar year 1927 showed a decrease of $54,692,188 from the total for 1926. Internal Revenue reports disclosed that receipts from these taxes totaled $587,363,598 in 1927 against $642,055,786 for the year before. The losses, it was explained, were due in the main to a lowering of the rates, reflected particularly in the estate tax, which declined from $107,341,985 in 1926 to $41,392. The most pronounced increase, despite a lowering of rates, was shown by tobacco products which brought $387,427,888 in 1927 compared with $371,877,868 in 1926, an increase of $15,550,020.

BOY, 8, KILLED WHEN HE RUNS IN FRONT OF AUTO

Edward Koszela, Going Home From School, Is Struck at Thirteenth and Mullanphy Streets.

On his way home from school yesterday afternoon Edward Koszela, 8 years old, 1639A Helen street, was struck and killed by an automobile at Thirteenth and Mullanphy streets.

The car was driven by Samuel Adams, filling station proprietor, of Venice, Ill. He said the boy was standing with other boys on the corner and ran into the street. The boy was dead from skull fracture when he was taken to the Mullanphy Hospital. He was taken there in a Post-Dispatch delivery truck, which passed the accident scene.

Mrs. Nancy Jane Pettriss, 55, a widow, 1112 North Eighteenth street, suffered fractures of the skull, hip and ankle when struck by an automobile driven by Saul House, 8462 Wells avenue, at Eighteenth street and Franklin avenue. She is at City Hospital.

A man thought to be J. A. Cooper, about 65 years old, was killed when struck by an automobile on the highway one mile north of Nemo, Ill. The car was driven by Joseph H. Sarfaty, film salesman of St. Louis, who took the body to Granite City. A coroner's verdict of accident was returned.

The man's possessions included a letter addressed to J. A. Cooper, a clothes label bore that name and a hospital tag indicated that he had been discharged from a hospital five days ago. A cut in which five stitches had been taken was on his head.

MRS. BERTRAND RUSSELL FOR 'COMPANIONATE' MARRIAGE

British Economist's Wife in U. S. for Lectures, Says It Offers Solution of Problem.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Believing in free love—"it is honest"—impatient of the modern system of marriage and eager to observe the experiment of companionate marriage, Mrs. Bertrand Russell, wife of the English economist and publicist and mother of two children, arrived here yesterday to tell America her views.

Mrs. Russell has acquired a prominence through her work in education and her writing, principally on marriage. Her newest work, "The Right to Be Happy," was published recently.

Companionate marriage, she said yesterday, offers a solution to the present system of marriage, "which is extremely unsatisfactory," chiefly, she said, for the reason that people nowadays marry not for the purpose of having children.

CARNATIONS WILL BE GIVEN TO HOSPITALS HERE TODAY

W. A. Rowe, of Kirkwood, was elected president of the American Carnation Society at the final session of its annual convention at Hotel Chase yesterday. His greenhouse produces more than 2,000,000 carnations a year.

Other officers elected were: A. M. Herr, Lancaster, Pa., vice president; R. J. Goddard, Farmington, Mass., treasurer; O. E. Steinkamp, Indianapolis, Ind., secretary.

Hundreds of carnations of many varieties exhibited at the National Carnation Show, held in conjunction with the convention, will be distributed today among hospitals of the city. The 1929 convention and show will be held at Lancaster, Pa.

JUDGES DINE WITH COOLIDGE

Many New England Friends Also at White House Function.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—A distinctly New England group was invited to the White House last night for the dinner of the President and Mrs. Coolidge to Justice Taft and his associates of the Supreme Court. The guests seated at the massive mahogany table in the state dining room included, in addition to officials of the Government associated with the judiciary, many of Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge's personal friends from New England. Among them were former Gov. William F. Stickney of Vermont and Mrs. Stickney and President Arthur Stanley Pease of Amherst College and Mrs. Pease, who are White House guests.

Other guests included the ranking Republican and Democrat of the House Judiciary Committee, Representatives Dyer of Missouri and Sumners of Texas, and their wives; Representative Hickey of Indiana, also a member of this committee, and Senator Overman of North Carolina, the ranking Democrat on the Senate Judiciary Committee, and Mrs. Overman.

Senator Norris of Nebraska, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, said that so far as he knew he had not been invited.

GILLETTE TO SUPPORT HOOVER FOR NOMINATION
Massachusetts Senator Says Secretary of Commerce Is Easiest Man to Elect.
SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Jan. 27.—Senator Frederick H. Gillett of Massachusetts last night declared himself unreservedly in favor of Herbert Hoover for the next Republican nomination for President. "I presume every other Republican in Massachusetts feels as I do, that we should prefer President Coolidge to anybody else. Except for his own refusal, he would undoubtedly have been the candidate."

"I stated that, President Coolidge being out of the field, Hughes was my first choice and Hoover my second. Now Hughes has withdrawn and Hoover is my choice. Above anyone else he represents the Coolidge policies. Moreover, we need not ignore the fact that he has a very widespread popularity and would be the surest and easiest man to elect."

FOUR MEN INDICTED ON PERJURY CHARGE

Three Were Witnesses for the Defense in the Birmingham Murder Trial.

Indictment of four persons for alleged perjury in recent criminal trials in the Circuit Court was announced today. At the same time, Circuit Attorney Sidener announced he had declared an "open season on perjurers" and witnesses giving false testimony in court would be called to account.

Three of the persons indicted were witnesses for Maurice Birmingham, who was convicted by a jury Dec. 16 and got a life sentence as one of the murderers of George Schou in a holdup Nov. 17, 1926.

Two of them, Albert L. Ballinger and Frank Gillen, 3038 Arlington avenue, testified in support of Birmingham's alibi, that they saw him at a saloon in Venice, Ill., at the time of the holdup. Ballinger is a steam shovel operator, residing at 8922 San Francisco avenue.

The third witness, Everett Weeks, a carpenter, of 2720 A St. Vincent avenue, testified he was at the scene of the robbery and murder, the Swedish Hall at 1157 South Kingshighway, but did not see Birmingham among the robbers. The State called attention to the fact that Weeks had not informed police he was present at the time.

The fourth man indicted for perjury was Michael Mooney, 2116 Madison street, recently acquitted of a robbery charge. He testified in his trial he had been convicted only once before of a criminal offense. Since then, it is alleged, the State has found he had been convicted twice.

PERSHING SPENDS CROWDED DAY IN OLD HOME TOWN

He Hasn't Changed a Bit, but Laclede, Mo., Has Grown Stiffly Formal in Its New-Found Fame.

BANQUET REPLACES OLD-TIME SUPPER

General Squelches Embryo Presidential Boom by Saying: "I'm Not in Politics."

By FREDERICK H. BRENNAN, A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

LACLEDE, Mo., Jan. 27.—Well, sir, Gen. Pershing was back in town yesterday. The General had a big time and went away last night with a grin of reminiscence that was good to see. But behind him he left many sore and aching hearts, and mayhap, a few sore heads.

The General hadn't changed a bit. There he was, the same old General, grizzled and magnificently military in mien, trying hard to unbend, yet giving you the reminder that this man had powdered with Haig and Foch, and had commanded 2,000,000 soldiers. The General did his part and more to make the return to his boyhood home a jolly day. It was Laclede that had changed. Laclede quite evidently has been having a harder tussle with its fame than the General has had with his.

Banquet and Billed Shirts. If there is such a malady as "boyhood homesitis" Laclede has got it badly. What used to be simply a supper "over to the church" became a banquet last night. The banquet started off with speeches and fruit compotes, and the water was served in those iridescent tip-over tridescant goblets. Mayor Ed Allen and Henry Lomax, the town banker, had on billed shirts. The number of banquet guests was restricted to 30. Eighteen of these were members of the exclusive "I-Knew-General-Pershing-as-a-Boy" Club and the other 12 were country editors, ministers and American Legion representatives.

Editor A. J. Carwood of the Laclede Blade halted correspondents of four big city papers at the door. "You're just reporters," he said. Gen. Pershing turned to Mayor Allen. "Ed," he said, "I wish you'd get these fellows in here." Mayor Allen said, coldly, "We can take care of just so many." The correspondents ate at Mrs. Morrow's cafe across the railroad tracks, after listening to the speeches from the doorway of the banquet hall.

Pershing Squelches Boom. The formality of the dinner—a photographer came over from Brookfield to take pictures—was increased by the determination of the "I-Knew-General-Pershing-as-a-Boy" Club to launch a presidential boom. Mayor Allen said early in the day he was thinking about political conditions and wondering if the time was ripe to make Laclede the home town of a President. Last night Pastor F. A. Thorey made the formal welcoming address in which he said: "There have been three great conflicts in American history, sir. The Revolutionary War and the Civil War gave us great generals and Presidents as well. I see no logical reason why the World War cannot do so, too, by giving us a President in Gen. Pershing."

Gen. Pershing replied: "I am not in politics. I do not talk politics. The reference to me is highly flattering but it must end there, as far as I am concerned." At first it had been intended to invite 100 guests to the banquet. Mayor Allen and Editor Gaywood and others decided to prune this list. "A lot of people hereabouts claim they went to school with Pershing or knew him when they didn't," Mayor Allen explained. When asked by what process the genuine claimants were separated from the mere social climbers and imposters Editor Gaywood said: "We consulted the records." Some of those who were thus weeded out as not qualified to attend the banquet informed the correspondent that Laclede is a town divided. Social lines were drawn at the Methodist Church last night which may become traditional, they said.

Where Was He Born, Anyway? Another controversy raged all day among residents of Linn County, over the question: "Was Gen. Pershing born in Laclede?" Mayor Allen and W. R. Barton, the druggist, and J. A. Crowder of Excelsior Springs (he is a member of the inner circle who went to school with the General), all assert that Gen. Pershing was born in the old Polson house in Laclede. Henry and James Lomax and Judge O. P. Libby, old-timers and members of the I. K. P. A. A. B. Club, declared positively that the General was born three and a half miles from Laclede.

Not satisfied with being merely the boyhood home of the General, Laclede has come to cherish the belief that it is the birthplace as well. This has caused other Linn Countians, especially the citizenry of Mendville, seven miles to the westward. Mendville people side with Judge Libby and his asso-clates in declaring that Pershing was born in a railroad section cabin between Meadville and Laclede, but nearer Meadville. The people of Meadville have hung a large sign on an orchard fence to mark the supposed site of the cabin, reading: "This is the birthplace of General Pershing."

The controversy, which had been smoldering since Gen. Pershing's previous visit here nine years ago, burst out with renewed vigor yesterday. Mayor Allen based his argument on the following points: That Gen. Pershing had told him with his own lips he was born in Laclede; that it stood to reason Gen. Pershing ought to know; that Gen. Pershing's daddy got through working on the railroad a year before the General was born and it stood to reason he wouldn't let his wife stay in a section shack when he could move to Laclede.

To the Meadville disputants and the Judge Libby faction in Laclede this talk is stuff and nonsense. Judge Libby pointed out that old Mrs. John Betts of Meadville had attended the birth of Gen. Pershing; that she had said it occurred in a cabin three and a half miles from Laclede or maybe four and a half; that her daughter, Mrs. Fannie Moorehead, who was five years old at the time, distinctly remembers how her mother was called to take care of Pershing's mother.

After listening to the arguments for seven hours it occurred to the correspondent that perhaps the thing to do would be to ask Gen. Pershing where he was born. Gen. Pershing answered without a second's hesitation:

"I was born in a cabin between Meadville and Laclede."

Countless rivalries and jealousies engendered by the fame that thus pressed so heavily on Laclede could not prevent the General from having a good time.

He came into town on Col. John H. Carroll's private car. Col. Carroll used to be a lawyer over at Linneus and did a little lobbying down at Jefferson City. Then he got famous and became public relations counsel of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. One of his achievements was to give Queen Marie of Rumania a free ride across the United States. Col. Carroll is a genial man and his cigars are of the best.

The private car looked so imposing from the outside that when it rolled to a stop by the lumber yard everybody was a little at loss. Folks were bashful, too, because the Mayor's Committee had decorated somebody's Buick with American flags and nothing looked natural. When the General appeared on the back platform everybody looked at him and he looked at everybody. No one dared speak because in St. Louis or Kansas City it simply isn't done until the Mayor's Committee says you may. Mayor Allen and his committee were late.

Meets Old Friends.

So, after an awkward pause Gen. Pershing espied J. A. Crowder, an old schoolmate, in the throng. "There's Crowder!" he said simply, and grinned, holding out his hand. Crowder pushed forward and they shook hands. "By George, I'm glad to see you!" said the General. By the time the Mayor and his committee arrived, Gen. Pershing had greeted a number of persons. One was Moss Stevens, an aged Negro, who climbed under a car truck and bobbed up with a wide smile. "Why do you write you name, Black Jack, Gen?!" he inquired. "You ain't black."

Gen. Pershing said: All right, Moss. I won't write my name that way any more."

Luncheon was served in the private car with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lemax, Mayor Allen and Mrs. Mattie Packer, Pershing's cousin, as guests. About 400 persons looked on from the station platform. There was some guessing as to the menu. The correspondent thought he identified veal cutlets, but Mrs. Jones from over Brookfield way said it was chicken. After lunch the General went to the Laclede schoolhouse to talk to the children. Little kids from rural schools, wearing overalls and clean blue shirts, had come in to see the great man. His picture hung on the wall of the crowded assembly room.

Gen. Pershing told them how lucky they were to be just starting life with so many wonderful things took nine bolts of jersey cloth val-valued at $1300. The loss was discovered when the shop was opened this morning. Police believe a truck was used to haul the goods away.

Burglars Take $2800 in Loot.

While Herman Sextro was alone in his grocery at 4597 Garfield tered with drawn revolver and commanded him to turn his hands and throw up his hands. Taking $20 from the register, the robber started toward the door when Sextro, getting a revolver from a drawer, began firing at him. The robber halted and returned the fire. Each fired several times but all the bullets apparently went wide of their mark.

A Negro held up Louis Lipschitz

COSGRAVE IN PHILADELPHIA
Irish Free State President Futs Wreath On Liberty Bell.
By the Associated Press.
PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 27.—
William I. Cosgrave, president of the Executive Council of the Irish Free State and his party arrived here today from Washington for a visit of two days. He was accompanied by Dr. T. A. Smiddy, minister of the Irish Free State to the United States.

Waiting at the railroad station to receive the visitors was a committee representing the friendly sons of St. Patrick and a troop of Philadelphia city cavalry. Cosgrave was formally greeted by the Mayor and later placed a wreath on the historic Liberty Bell at Independence Hall. He was the guest of honor at a luncheon given by the Mayor. Tonight Cosgrave and
Dr. Smiddy will address the Philadelphia Forum.

about and remarked to Miss Minnie Tripper, the principal: "They will remember that they've seen me, anyway."

Makes Speech at Linneus.
Then he and his party, followed by a dozen automobile loads, drove to Linneus, the county seat, for a speech in the courthouse there.
Returning to Laclede at 8:30, the General held a reception at the Opera House. The sidewalk was jammed with those eager to shake his hand.... "Do you know me?"
I do. I just can't think of the name.... Why, of course.... Mrs.
Lamb.... I told her, General, we'd spring that letter you wrote on you.
... Oh, my no, not in public. I hope (Laughter)... Well, well....
step up, children, and shake hands
... I wish I could shake hands with all of you....
A Negro woman came forward with four children.
"These is Uncle Al Hall's grandchildren, Gen'l."

Gen. Pershing said: "Fine! I remember Uncle Al. I'll tell you a story if there are no reporters about. Uncle Al used to give dances and invite all the pretty colored gals. One night he invited everybody to a dance. Well, everybody came to Uncle Al's dance and he was so tickled he danced up and down. One of his legs was shorter than the other. But finally somebody asked, 'When is the dancing to start? Where's the fiddler?' Uncle Al said, 'Pshaw. I clean forgot about that fiddler. I forgot to get one.'"
Four beaming small black faces rewarded the story and other children pressing about had wide eyes.
They could remember they once saw Pershing clear.

Living Old Days Over.
After a trip to Brookfield where the General stopped to call on Wade Patrick, an aviator who got cracked up three days before his outfit went overseas, the party returned to Laclede. With John Crowder the General walked in the cemetery at the turn of the road, where two infant sisters and a small brother are buried. There was a search for the graves. Then the General and Crowder, two gray-haired men, sauntered along the streets and around the square, pointing out places where they used to play.

They talked about a stop at the old Pershing farm outside of town.
In that patch of timber the General had split rails to build fences.
There was the creek and the old swimming hole. They talked about old friends who had passed on:
Aunt Louisa Warren, Uncle Jordan
Parks, Aunt Susan Hewitt. It was the General's first visit to Laclede since Dec. 23, 1919.

"Has the old home town changed much, General?" somebody asked.
When he returned to Col. Carroll's car. "Quite some," the General replied. His eyes had a twinkle.
Maybe he was thinking of all the fun being made over Laclede's first real banquet.

WOMAN THRUST INTO FIRE
BY BROTHER DIES OF INJURIES Man Accused of Killing Sister at Frankfort, Ky., Recently Released From Asylum.
By the Associated Press.
FRANKFORT, Ky., Jan. 27.—
Mrs. Elizabeth Carter, 50 years old, died at a hospital here Wednesday night of burns she is said to have suffered when her brother, Edward Fish of Lexington, Ky., held her against an open fire until her clothing ignited.
According to a statement made by Mrs. Carter to hospital authorities before she died, Fish, who was recently released from the State Hospital for the Insane, arrived at the Carter home and said he was going to visit them a few days.

Carter, a farmer, was working near the house. He said that he ran to the home when he heard
Mrs. Carter's screams, extinguished the flames, and after a struggle, subdued Fish.
Fish denies the charge.

INJURY TO LATE ILLINOIS WHEAT REPORTED PROBABLE

By the Associated Press.
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 27.—Late wheat is probably injured and winter wheat is brown in many areas, says the weather bureau crop bulletin, for the week ending Tuesday.

This is a remarkable condition for January. Strong winds occurred on the 19th. Winter wheat was subjected to freezing and thawing and to two days fairly low temperature. It is brown in many areas. Late wheat is probably injured. Some corn is still in the fields."

LIQUOR RUNNER FOUND GUILTY OF KILLING PAIR

Federal Court Jury's Verdict
Makes a Death Sentence Mandatory.

By the Associated Press.
MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 27.—Horace Alderman, a liquor runner, was found guilty of the murder of Sidney A. Sanderlin and Victor A. Lamb, Coast Guardsmen, by a Federal Court jury here yesterday. The verdict makes a death sentence mandatory and Alderman was sentenced today by Judge Clayton to be hanged in the county jail at Fort Lauderdale on May 11. Sanderlin and Lamb were killed last August in a battle 40 miles off the Florida coast. The jury returned its verdict, without recommendation of mercy, after deliberating less than four hours. District Attorney William A. Gohber declared that if the penalty were carried out without interruption by other courts, it would be the first time a man has been executed in the South on a Federal Court sentence. Sanderlin and Lamb were killed after a patrol boat had captured Alderman and Robert Weech, a companion, aboard a rum running motor launch. Government witnesses, survivors of the Coast Guard crew, told how Alderman, following his capture, mysteriously obtained arms and instituted a reign of terror aboard the Coast Guard craft, in which he shot Sanderlin and Lamb and threatened the lives of all others aboard. Defense counsel announced that it would appeal the case.

DENTIST'S CHART HELPED RUN DOWN $100,000 SUSPECT

How Morris S. Gaskill Who Disappeared From Lockport, N. Y. in 1926 Was Finally Arrested Here.

A dental chart, showing the exact position of fillings in his teeth, and the trail left across seven states by a woman with whom he lived, resulted in the arrest here Wednesday of Morris S. Gaskill, former prosperous business man of Lockport, N. Y., accused of forgeries totalling $100,000. Gaskill is held waiting extradition to Lockport.

The dental chart proved to insurance companies, in which the 44-year-old finance expert and automobile man took out policies amounting to more than $200,000, that Gaskill was not dead. Friends of Gaskill identified as his body taken out of the Niagara River, after he had threatened in a letter "to end it all," and had disappeared. But the fillings in the dead man's teeth were unlike the fillings on Gaskill's dental chart, and insurance companies began a search to save $215,000.

Traced Through a Woman. They heard a story in Buffalo, N. Y., where Gaskill had written friends that he planned to commit suicide, about an attractive divorcee and a prosperous man in his forties who had lived in an apartment on Oxford avenue. The prosperous man, on investigation, proved to be Gaskill, then in hiding after it is alleged he had incensed forged notes amounting to $100,000, and collected them. The hunt for Gaskill, when detectives learned he was not communicating with his wife and family and had left Buffalo in the company of another woman, became a search for the good-looking divorcee.

Gaskill's transience came to light in March, 1926. He disappeared a month later, and in the following July, the Niagara River yielded up the body which was thought to be his. It was not until last October that Pinkerton detectives procured the dental chart and cast about for the trail of the divorcee.

They worked indefatigably for three months. They learned the divorcee's name and found her family, and did well-to-do folk in Pembroke, N. Y. They followed a clue that led into a small town in Oklahoma, where the divorcee's family has friends, and from Oklahoma to St. Louis.

Followed to St. Louis. "There's one daughter living in St. Louis," said an Oklahoma informant to the Pinkerton detective hunting Gaskill. "Her husband has lots of money. He owns a big barbecue restaurant there. I think his name is Leo Rogers."

James E. Conroy, the Pinkerton detective, was a bit discouraged. The chance that Leo Rogers might be Morris S. Gaskill for the moment seemed remote. The barbecue business seemed an unlikely occupation for the former president of the Buffalo Truck and Tractor Co. and major partner in the once thriving Clark Machine Co. of Lockport, N. Y. Conroy, however, studied the photograph of Gaskill he had carried for months and embarked for St. Louis.

Last Wednesday afternoon Conroy called at the barbecue shack operated by Leo Rogers at Goodfellow and Natural Bridge avenues. He took a good look at the proprietor and noticed a sprinkling of pockmarks on the right side of his face. Conroy chuckled as he left the barbecue stand. Those pockmarks were the distinguishing facial characteristics of Morris S. Gaskill. A few hours later Conroy arrived with police and the man under indictment at Lockport, N. Y., a bit surprised, was taken into custody.

Where Gaskill Slipped. "I don't see how they traced me," Gaskill said. "I went under an assumed name and never wrote back home. I hoped they would think me dead and pay the insurance to my family."

Gaskill forgot about the dental chart and the trail left by a divorcee, known in the neighborhood of Goodfellow and Natural Bridge avenues as Mrs. Leo Rogers.

The indictment charge against Gaskill concerns $100,000 collected from the Lockport Exchange Trust Co. on forged notes. It is not known whether the insurance companies will proceed against him. Sheriff Campbell of Niagara County, New York, and Assistant District Attorney Gilrie of Lockport arrived here today to conduct Gaskill, once regarded as the most promising young man in his native city, back to Lockport for trial.

ACQUITTED OF BEARD-CUTTING Religious Fanatic at Piraeus Was Accused of Attack on Prelate.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—An Athens dispatch to the Daily Express says that a religious fanatic named Caragandia, who was caught in a Piraeus church while cutting off the beard of the metropolitan of Athens with a pair of scissors, was acquitted Wednesday.

The act was in reprisal for the substitution by the metropolitan of the Gregorian for the Julian calendar, which is greatly resented by the populace. Paroxysms of religious frenzy, cheers and benedictions greeted the verdict of the Criminal Court acquitting Caragandia.

How to Have Soft, Pretty White Hands

Many women will undoubtedly be glad to know how they may have beautiful, white, soft, pretty hands regardless of the work they have to do. The secret lies in rubbing a little Ice-Mint into the hands occasionally preferably just before retiring at night. In the morning you will be pleasantly surprised at the pleasant transformation that has been wrought by even a single application. Ice-Mint is made from a Japanese product that is simply marvelous for its beautifying properties whether used on the hands or face. Regardless of what kind of work a woman does she should have pretty hands, as they are really the true mark of refinement. A few applications of Ice-Mint will actually make any woman proud of her hands and skin. It costs little and is sold and recommended everywhere.

TWO FIRMS GOT BULK OF PATENTED PAVING AWARDS

Total for These Contracts in Three Years Is $1,000,000 Higher Than Allotments to Six Bidders.

In the last three years the city let paving contracts with patented materials costing $3,123,621, a type of pavement pronounced uneconomical in a report made yesterday to the Board of Public Service by the Bureau of Municipal Research, an organization of taxpayers devoted to the study of economy in municipal government. The substance of this report was published in yesterday's Post-Dispatch.

Of this total amount, two companies obtained contracts costing $2,229,543, or nearly $1,000,000 more than was awarded to six other contractors who bid on the patented pavement.

The two successful companies were the Granite Bituminous Paving Co., of which Cecil Newbold, political supporter of Mayor Miller, is secretary-treasurer, and the Central Paving Co., G. Locke Tarlton, president. Tarlton, a resident of East St. Louis, is also a political supporter of the Mayor.

Newbold's company bid exclusively on Bitulithic pavement, and Tarlton's company on Willite and Bitulithic. The other contractors bid on Willite and Amiesite.

During the last five years, the report shows, the total yardage on contracts awarded for patented asphalt pavement amounted to 47.3 per cent of the total yardage awarded for all types of asphalt pavement. The cost of the patented pavement was 49.2 per cent of the total cost for all types of asphalt pavement. The cost of these patented pavements has steadily increased and that of sheet asphalt has decreased and is much lower than the patented processes.

The report cites engineers as stating that sheet asphalt is the best type of pavement; that the patented paving is not economical and does not last so long as other types.

CHARGES NEGROES
BLOCK ERECTION OF OWN SCHOOL

Demand Exorbitant Prices for Site, Says Board of Education Building Commissioner.

OUTLINES PROJECT
TO COST $500,000

Plan Is to Condemn Land for West Belle Structure to Replace Portables Hit by Tornado.

Patrons of West Belle public school for Negroes, which was conducted in brick and portable buildings until the tornado damaged them almost beyond repair last September, have held meetings to protest against delay in supplying this neighborhood with a new school.

In their protests the parents have charged the Board of Education with prejudice in this instance by laying aside the West Belle project for less urgent accommodations for white children.

Replying to these protests, as outlined to him by a Post-Dispatch reporter, R. M. Milligan, Commissioner of Buildings for the Board of Education, today said the West Belle neighborhood would have had a new school were it not that certain Negro property owners in the block have repeatedly refused to sell their property to the board except at exorbitant prices.

The Board of Education owns 150 feet frontage on the north side of West Belle place, the site of the old portables, and needs at least that much more for a suitable school building and playground. In seeking options on additional ground, Milligan said, prices the board could not consistently pay were demanded by the Negro owners.

Police Halted Repair Work.
"We then attempted to repair the portables and put a new roof on the brick building as a temporary measure," said Milligan,
"but the Negroes of that block went to City Hall and had us stopped. They called on Building Commissioner Christopher and he had police drive our workmen off the job. As a result we were unable to put a new roof on the brick building and the weather has ruined it."

"We now have a plan with the City Plan Commission to condemn all the property from a point 105 feet east of Sarah street to a point 470 feet west of Vandeventer avenue and extending from the north side of West Belle to the south side of Finney, which we propose to buy at reasonable prices and use for a $350,000 school and city playground."

"This condemnation would give us a site with 560 feet frontage on West Belle and Finney. The project will vacate Fairfax avenue in this block, making the site two blocks wide, from north to south. The whole project will cost in excess of $500,000. The ordinance is now in committee and will shortly come before the Board of Aldermen for passage. With no serious opposition in the courts we should have the project completed within two years."

Blames Property Owners.
Milligan cited, as an example of what the Negro property owners are demanding for their property, one site purchased three years ago for $4500 and now offered for sale at $16,000. He asserted that these property owners and not the Board of Education are holding up the project for a new school.

In discussing further the clash with the Building Commissioner's office, Milligan said the Board of Education is compelled to pay for building permits, citing 31 buildings and additions erected since 1915 for which the board had to pay the city a total of $12,246 for permits. He contended that municipal and public buildings should be exempt from this charge, pointing out that a permit charge is not levied against postoffice and other Government buildings.

Building Commissioner Christopher admitted some Negroes called on him and protested against repair of the tornado damage to the West Belle school buildings, but added that this did not influence his action in stopping the work.

Says Board Had No Permit.
"I stopped the roofing and other work," he said, "because the Board of Education had failed to take out a permit as required by law. That was my only reason."

"As to Mr. Milligan's complaint about paying for permits: It is true the Government does not pay for permits as a rule, but the contractor who put up the Federal Reserve Bank Building paid $1000 for its permit. The law, which does not require a charge for permits for public buildings, does not exempt them and we make the charge."

The West Belle school children are being taught for the present in 12 portable buildings adjoining Summer High School, on Cottage avenue. The Board of Education pays the street car fare of those living farthest from this location, amounting to about $61 a week.

The attendance in these portables is about 450. About 300 others of the West Belle children were transferred to the Crow School, 3325
Belle avenue, east of Grand.

TESTING MEN'S WORK SHOES Factory Gets Report From Selected Wearers of Samples.
Special to the Post-Dispatch
MOBERLY, Mo.—An interesting method of how men's work shoes are tested to prove their wearability was disclosed here by T. J. Cox, superintendent of the local factory when he produced records showing that samples of the shoes made at the factory were being worn by a mail carrier, farmer, railroad section laborer and a cement worker.

The shoes were given to the men to wear during their daily work and report back to the company the number of days they were worn, the weather conditions that prevailed at the time and other data considered necessary in providing wearing qualities.

SPIRIT OF GOD MOVING CITY, SAYS SUNDAY

Evangelist, in Digression, Compares Baseball Gloves to Big Pillows.

It was a busy hour for handkerchiefs at the Coliseum last night when Billy Sunday turned on the cello stops of his oratorical pipe organ.

His text was "No man cared for my soul" from the 142d Psalm. For a while he hammered away at people who didn't care enough for any one's soul to ask him to join the church. And then he followed up a side-splitting imitation of a Methodist exhorter with a wooden leg by a story of the death of a little child.

Eyes began to glisten. From there on Sunday spared no detail of heart-broken fathers and dying mothers.

It was observed that he left nothing out. All the details of the child's death were there, just as all the painful facts were related in his story of an electrocution the other night. Apparently Sunday never resorts to planisimio. When he has a point to make, whether to harrow, amuse, exalt or convert his listeners, he drives it home.

Baseball Digression.

In a digression on baseball, the old-time fielder remarked: "We didn't wear mittens like great big pillows as they do now. We used to play for the love of the game, and now it's got to be a commercial proposition."

"You must have eyes in the back of your head if you can't see that the spirit of God is moving upon St. Louis," he shouted.

"Heaven, earth and hell are interested in this campaign. Heaven is trying to save you, earth to cheat you, and hell to damn you."

It became apparent, as the sermon continued, that Sunday was weary, although the energy of his discourse was unabated. Closing, he swung into prayer.

"Say, Jesus, I'm tired. Glad of it. Been tired lots of times serving the devil, when I had no compensation to expect from my conscience."

Scores crowded down the "sawdust trail," and 49 signed cards accepting Christianity, including 32 reconsecrations, 14 others who indicated what church they wished to enter, and three who merely signed the acknowledgment of faith. Of the 49, 19 were from out of town.

1200 Seats Reserved.

Delegations from Troy, Mo., East St. Louis and Sparta, Ill., and five St. Louis churches, along with several hundred business women who have a permanent reservation, served 1200 seats. Sixteen public utilities officers from Texas and New Mexico sat on the platform. Increased tenancy of the far spaces of the great hall is expected since the aged this afternoon, for children tomorrow afternoon and for young people tomorrow night, were announced. Sunday is to preach to men only Sunday afternoon, while meetings for women only will be held in Westminster Presbyterian Church and Third Baptist Church.

PARK AND PLAYGROUND ASSOCIATION OUTLINES PLANS

Training Course Part of Program Described by A. H. Wyman at University Club.

Major projects chosen by the Park and Playground Association for a comprehensive working program were described by A. H. Wyman, executive secretary, at the annual board meeting, at the University Club yesterday, as follows:

Establishment of a practical and technical recreation training course at a local educational institution; complete study of ways and means of getting adequate financial support for a city-wide recreation program; organization of a St. Louis recreation council to study needs and recommend means of filling the growing demand for playgrounds and athletic fields; a start toward an outer-park system by establishing a temporary recreation corporation or through gifts.

Wyman said the association aimed to co-operate with the city and civic groups in a practical program to keep pace with growing recreational needs. Dr. C. F. Wilson, field representative of the Playground and Recreation Association of America, declared St. Louis is not living up to high recreational standards established years ago.

MEXICO CITY POLICE

CLOSE FOUR SCHOOLS

Principal of Seminary and Four Priests Held for Investigation.

By the Associated Press.
MEXICO CITY, Jan. 27.—The principal, 16 instructors and eight students of a Catholic school were under arrest today as the result of a police campaign to enforce the religious laws. The entire student body of the Seminario de Regina was arrested, but 190 of the students were released last night on orders from Gen. Roberto Cruz, chief of police of Mexico City.

Twenty-one teachers, said to be nuns, of Colegio Josefino, a Catholic girls' school, who were arrested Wednesday charged with conducting propaganda against the government also were released by order of the district court.

The seminary, the Colegio Josefino and two smaller Catholic girls schools were closed by the police. Father Benigno Esquivel, principal of the seminary, 12 priests and four other teachers were held by police pending investigation of alleged seditious activities by them. The eight students were said by police to have been found dressed in cassocks in violation of the religious laws.

The police also closed the headquarters of the Catholic Federation. Seventeen members were arrested but later released.

The orders for the raids on the schools were issued, Gen. Cruz said, because of reports that the religious laws were being violated in the schools visited by the imparting of religious teaching in violation of the constitution. Drastic measures would be taken in all similar cases, he said, because the government was determined to enforce the laws of the country.

Rebel Band Attacks Town: Is Repelled by Federal Forces.

By the Associated Press.
MEXICO CITY, Jan. 27.—Press dispatches from Leon, State of Guanajuato, say a rebel or bandit leader nicknamed "El Catorce" ("the fourteen") recently attacked the town of San Francisco Del Rincon and captured the outlying sections, but the Federal garrison resisted strongly.

After several hours' battle, the rebels retreated, leaving many dead. The dispatches do not estimate the casualties or forces of either side.

El Catorce is said to be one of the leaders of a band which attacked a passenger train between Guadalajara and Mexico City last year, killing several passengers. Several times since then El Catorce has been reported killed, but after each report he issues his own form of denial—a new deception.

U. S. OFFICERS SANCTION USE OF MILITIA FOR RELIEF WORK

Bureau Chief Praises Action of Gov. Donahay to Aid Suffering Ohio Miners.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—A new peace-time use for the National Guard adopted by Governor Donahay of Ohio, has attracted the attention of War Department officials and particularly of Major General Creed C. Hammond, chief of the Militia Bureau.

To relieve distress among children of unemployed miners of southeastern Ohio, Governor Donahay recently designated the National Guard and naval militia as the relief agency responsible for the procurement of food, clothing, supplies, and money, and for their distribution.

Commenting upon this new use of the State's defense forces, General Hammond said the rapidity with which the National Guard responded was a remarkable demonstration. The example set by Governor Donahay, he said, constituted an unusual illustration of the civic value of the National Guard in an emergency, and of its capacity for other uses than for combat.

Mrs. Louise Redfield Tells How She Regained Strength After The Flu

—Cape Studio.
"After I had the 'flu' I was very weak and nervous. I was also tormented with headaches. My blood seemed to be thin and I could not regain my strength. I was advised to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which I did, and before I had finished the third bottle I was feeling like a different person. My health improved so rapidly that I was astonished. I think the 'Discovery' saved my life and I consider it a wonderful remedy."
Mrs. Louise Redfield, 230 De Witt St., Clinton, Iowa.
Obtain the Discovery in tablets or liquid from your druggist; or send 10c for trial pkg. to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y.

U. S. LABOR URGES HANDS-OFF POLICY IN LATIN AMERICA

President Green of A. F. of L., in Letter to Hughes, Says "It Is Only Safe Course."

PLEDGED TO IDEALS OF SELF GOVERNMENT

Deeply Regrets That Coolidge Failed to Designate Labor Delegate at Havana Meeting.

By the Associated Press.
MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 27.—An unequivocal hands-off policy is the only course the United States can pursue in Latin America to insure perfect cordial relations with those countries, in the belief of the American Federation of Labor.

This sentiment was outlined in a communication mailed by President Green of the Federation Wednesday night to Charles Evans Hughes, chairman of the United States delegation at the Pan-American congress in Havana.

The resume of organized labor's views on the situation also expressed "deep regret that the Government of the United States failed to designate a responsible representative of labor" to serve on the delegation to the congress or in an advisory capacity.

Green wrote: "Labor's international principles, as well as labor's principles of self-government are compatible with those of most all other groups of people within the United States and the Pan-American countries."

"They are pledged to the ideals of self-government. This is no new policy. It is traditional Americanism. It is a policy supported by the overwhelming sentiment of the American people. Only selfish interests within the United States and abroad which are influenced by greed and desire for exploitation oppose it."

"We deeply regret that the Government of the United States failed to designate a responsible representative of labor to serve upon your delegation or in an advisory capacity. We feel that the highest and best interests of the Pan-American Union could have been better served if the voice of labor could have been heard in the councils of this great organization. Your deliberations and legislation are of transcendent importance to the working people of all the countries represented."

Clues Mexican Row.
The letter expressed the hope that "practical and constructive results will be achieved not only in technical questions such as communication and sanitation, but also in the consideration of subjects classified under the heading of international public law and the constitution of the Pan-American Union."

"American labor has raised its voice most effectively when some menacing and threatening situation arose disturbing the friendly relations existing between the United States and countries in Central and South America," the letter declared.

"The American Federation of Labor has taken a strong and most advanced position upon some of the most momentous subjects appearing on the agenda of the Havana conference. In the diplomatic controversies which arose between the Government of the United States and the Republic of Mexico we favored international arbitration as a means of bringing about an honorable and just settlement of any dispute which could not be settled through the ordinary channels by direct negotiations."

Oppose Intervention.
"Furthermore, organized labor in the United States has expressed itself as being irrevocably opposed to any form of unauthorized intervention in the domestic and political affairs of other nations."

Attention was called to a resolution, adopted at the last convention of the Federation in Los Angeles, expressing the hope that "the United States will again adopt the policy which in the main it adhered to during the first century of our national life, a policy based upon the proposition that Americans and so-called American interests in foreign countries must abide by and accept the consequences of American law."

Has Worked 31 Years in One Mill.

HAVANA, Jan. 27.—Col. Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the Board of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, will return to Washington as soon as he can get there to answer the summons of the Senate oil slush fund committee.

He is much annoyed at the interruption of important business in which he is engaged, is sure that he should be accused of breaking faith, and insists that his departure from the United States was without mystery, for when he left no intimation that the committee wanted him had reached him.

Moreover, he means to tell Senator Walsh of Montana and the others of the committee members everything he could. That has been his position all along, he says.

"What will you tell them about the destination of the balance of the Continental Co.'s profits?" he was asked.

"That," he said, "is my business," adding that courtesy to the committee demanded that he should not discuss his testimony in advance.

Resents Being Called Home.

Stewart is a big, breezy individual, with none of the usual reticence of international business men. His resentment of the manner of his being called home was obvious; his annoyance at being to Washington to answer the summons of the Senate oil slush fund committee was also apparent.

This morning's boat is the first he can take back to the mainland. His soreness and the uncertainty of what will happen when he gets to Washington are not interfering with his diversions. He tied up yesterday with John Barnett, Democratic National Committee man from Colorado, also an oil man, and later went to the horse races.

"I am taking the first boat to Key West," he declared. "I have got some things to attend to in Chicago, but I will be in Washington by next Wednesday. We intend to go on the witness stand before the committee and answer every question put to me."

Violated No Agreement.

"You tell me the newspapers record that I am charged with having violated a gentleman's agreement to appear Jan. 24. That is absurd. I have been ready at all times to testify. The Messrs. Pomerene and Roberts have had me in their own offices, and machine-gunned me with interrogations. I was in attendance on the Fall-Sinclair trial for three weeks, waiting to be called, when the case was interrupted. I was advised to come back Jan. 16."

"Before that time I received a telegram from our counsel in Washington, Mr. Stephens, that it would be my right to return by Jan. 24. Later I was informed by Messrs. Pomerene and Roberts, special counsel for the Government, that the case had gone over until later. I know nothing about the committee and the first word I got that it wanted me was when I saw it in a Havana newspaper Wednesday."

On Mission for U. S.

"Business of great importance, not only to me and my company, but to the United States demands my presence in Mexico. I had arranged to sail for that country Monday. This was at the request of Ambassador Morrow to aid in clearing up the oil situation there. I had notified our executives to meet me there Feb. 5."

That business all goes by the board. I am taking the first boat I can get back to the United States. I can not see what difference it would make if I put my week in Mexico and appeared before the committee not later than Feb. 15. "All of these plans were known to the committee. Our Washington attorney, Stephens, told Senator Nye, chairman of the committee, all about it and there was a suggestion that I should not go. The idea that I am or ever have been a fugitive from a subpoena is as ridiculous as it is unfair. Everything I know is at the service of the committee. I will not be a contumacious witness in any respect."

Col. Stewart came to Havana because he and his group were on account of the Pan-American conference some of the highest and most important men in the governments of the Latin-American republics. The Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, when refused drilling permits in Mexico, found its output from its Tampico refinery reduced from 120,000 barrels a day to 50,000. It made up the deficit by jumping into the Venezuelan field, from which it is now getting 70,000 to 75,000 barrels a day.

It was for the purpose of arranging this that he left the United States last month, Stewart said. The competition for the South American oil fields is intense between the American companies and the Dutch-Snell interests, in which British capital has a vast share. Negotiations have also been started with Colombia.

Stewart left Venezuela for Havana to meet Ambassador Morrow here. The two went over the Mexican situation and Morrow told him his presence in Mexico City would be of importance in clearing up affairs there. With the oil output decreased the Mexican Government is deprived of a vast volume of tax revenues. Consequently that Government is looking for a graceful way of bringing about a resumption of operations after the oil fields.

This situation has all been talked about among the Latin-American delegates in Havana. Stewart is one of those countries having oil potentialities, and it was no surprise to them when Stewart appeared and had his conference with Morrow and with various cabinet officers from below the isthmus.

Morrow, on his return to Mexico this week from Havana, cabled of arrangements for meetings between Col. Stewart and President Calles. Indeed, it is not impossible that this opportunity to straighten out the oil mess was the real reason for Morrow's hurrying away after he had been in Havana a week.

The United States Government's concern, as indicated by Ambassador Morrow's activities goes far beyond the effort to aid American commerce. Various warnings have been given in Washington of the depletion of American oil fields, no considerable part of which output is being sent abroad through the Dutch-Snell and other foreign interests.

Government's Direct Interest.

Consequently the Government feels a direct interest in seeing that available foreign fields should not pass away from American control. Production from these foreign fields is part of the conservation system of which Teapot Dome and Elk Hills reserves are an element. Moreover, the administration is anxious to get the last vestige of our controversies with Mexico cleared up.

Stewart would not discuss this phase of the matter beyond saying that it was at Morrow's request that he had planned to spend a week in Mexico City. On the other hand, he did not disguise the fact that the preemptory summons from Washington gave the foreign interests an advantage in the race for the oil fields.

"However," he said philosophically, "that's water over the dam. They want me in a hurry and there is nothing I can do but answer the summons. But I wish they would not accuse me of running away, or talk about my having violated a gentleman's agreement."

H. S. Oiler, sought as witness, now at Riviera Villa.

TORONTO, Jan. 27.—H. S. Oiler, Toronto attorney, who was sought by United States authorities in connection with the Teapot Dome scandal, is at present at his villa in Cannes on the Riviera, a Deeply Regrets That Coolidge Failed to Designate Labor Delegate at Havana Meeting.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 27.—The petition of Philip Murray, vice president of the United Mine Workers, which is now filed with the United States Prohibition Bureau at Washington, demanding a round-up of conditions of vice, bootlegging and dope peddling alleged to exist in the mining camps of the Pittsburgh Coal Co., is virtually a demand that Andrew W. Mellon clean up his own back yard.

As Secretary of the Treasury, Mellon is the supreme head of the enforcement of the prohibition laws as well as the Harrison anti-narcotic act, both of which are administered by his department. At the same time he is, according to well-informed authorities in Pittsburgh financial circles, the largest individual stockholder and the dominant force of the Pittsburgh Coal Co., which the United Mine Workers have been striking for more than 30 months.

As the stockholders' list of the Pittsburgh Coal Co. has never been made public, there is no way of verifying this except through an official investigation which would require the production of the company's financial records. It appears certain, however, that the Mellon family controls the corporation. B. Mellon, a brother, is a member of the Board of Directors and the Union Trust Co., a Mellon bank, holds more than $10,000,000 of its securities.

Charges Open Bootlegging.

"If the prohibition officials at Washington will order an honest and thorough investigation of the mining camps of the Pittsburgh Coal Co.," Murray declared today, "they will find that bootlegging and drug peddling is being carried on openly with the knowledge of the coal and iron police employed by this corporation. We have positive evidence of such a traffic being carried on at the Pittsburgh Coal Co. camps, Moon Run and Carnegie. We also know, not only from our own people but from Deputy Sheriffs and officials, that bootlegging and dope peddling flourish at the Pittsburgh Coal Co.'s mine, Bontone No. 9, near McDowell, Pa.; at Bontone No. 2, near Bridgeville; at the Werden mine near Scott Haven; at the Ocean mine No. 5, near Smithdale, and at the Crescent No. 4, near California.

At several of these mining camps there have been raids by Deputy Sheriffs who have caught the bootleggers red-handed, and at others attempts of officials to enforce the law and stop the traffic in illicit liquor and drugs have been blocked by coal and iron police who have refused to permit the camps to be entered even by officers of the law. This wholesale traffic in liquor and drugs could not be carried on if the officials of Mr. Mellon's own company, the Pittsburgh Coal Co., were determined to stop it. Every one of these camps is guarded by coal and iron police employed and completely controlled by that corporation. No one can enter one of these camps at any hour of the day or night without the consent of these police who carry a pass signed by an officer of the company. Nor can it be said that the large amounts of liquor that we know are being sold in these camps have been smuggled in. The liquor must be taken in by the truckload or manufactured on the premises.

Says Police Connive in Sales.

"It may be," Murray admitted, "that the cocaine and other drugs being sold in these camps, principally to the Negro strike-breakers, are smuggled in, because they can be put up in small packages that are easily concealed in the clothing; but the large scale sale of whiskey and alcohol can be carried on only with the knowledge and consent of the coal and iron police. And they would not dare tolerate this open traffic if they had orders from the company officials that it must be stopped."

Murray's charge that coal and iron police have prevented officials engaged in the enforcement of the prohibition law from entering the camps was confirmed today by District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner, who declared that on several occasions, constables engaged in the investigation of the liquor traffic had been held up by company police. The Pittsburgh Coal Co. declined to comment on the charges.

In further support of his charges of wholesale bootlegging in and around the mining camps of this general territory, Murray cited the arrest last week of Joseph A. Meagher, vice-president of the Ohio Coal Operators' Association, and eight associates by Federal Prohibition Administrator John D. Pennington of Pittsburgh on charges of alleged transportation of intoxicating liquors. Meagher and one of his associates, a Harry Gee, a West Virginia millionaire, have been released on bonds of $5000 each.

Source of Strike Breakers.

The significance of these arrests, according to Murray, is in the fact that Meagher and several of those arrested with him, particularly Nick J. Hanna of Pittsburgh, are engaged in the business of supplying labor to the coal companies against which the United Mine Workers are now on strike. Harry Gee, the West Virginian, also has been a director of the "open shop" organization of which Meagher was manager for many years. It is Murray's opinion that further investigation may show these men had a large part in the control of the bootlegging which is said to flourish in the mining camps to which they furnished labor.

Meagher, a member of the Industrial group of the Republican Executive Committee, is said to have been in charge of the breaking activities of the United States Steel Corporation in the great steel strike of 1920. He is also alleged to operate detective agencies through which men are recruited for the Pennsylvania coal and iron police. Through these various channels which brought him into close contact with the coal industry throughout this section, Meagher has not interfered with the efforts of the Governor of West Virginia to reach the mining camps which are closed to everyone else.

Intends to Press Charges.

Murray, who, as international vice president of the United Mine Workers, filed the charges in Washington against the Pittsburgh Coal Co. and other corporations in this district declares he intends to press them vigorously.

"If we cannot get a prompt and thorough investigation of this situation through Mr. Mellon's department," he said today, "we are going to carry our charge to Congress. With the large majority of prohibitionists that is said to exist in both the House and Senate, there should be an active interest in the wholesale violation of the Volstead act and the anti-narcotic law, which has been permitted to grow up here in the heart of the coal fields. This sale of illicit liquor and drugs is responsible for a large part of the violence that has occurred in the strike zone.

"There have been almost a hundred murders in the coal camps of the Pittsburgh district since this situation was permitted to develop, and it is easy to trace a majority of them to bad liquor. Drunken brawls in these camps are of common occurrence. Fights and assaults by drunken men and women have ceased to attract more than passing attention.

"We are interested in this bootlegging situation in the coal camps, not as reformers, but as labor leaders striving to conduct a strike involving nearly three-quarters of a million of men, women and children with the minimum of friction and violence. This outrageous situation must be cleared up, and we shall not rest until it is done."

During the night a few persons gathered at the barricades. They were joined by others until at the time of the execution 4000 or 5000 persons were present. They were silent for the most part although occasionally some sang hymns and others prayed. Fifty policemen stood by to preserve order. Several men gathered and were taken to the scene when the prison bell tolled indicating that the men had been hanged. Many knelt and prayed. Then the crowd dispersed as silently as it had gathered.

This situation has all been talked about among the Latin-American delegates in Havana. Stewart is one of those countries having oil potentialities, and it was no surprise to them when Stewart appeared and had his conference with Morrow and with various cabinet officers from below the isthmus.

Morrow, on his return to Mexico this week from Havana, cabled of arrangements for meetings between Col. Stewart and President Calles. Indeed, it is not impossible that this opportunity to straighten out the oil mess was the real reason for Morrow's hurrying away after he had been in Havana a week.

The United States Government's concern, as indicated by Ambassador Morrow's activities goes far beyond the effort to aid American commerce. Various warnings have been given in Washington of the depletion of American oil fields, no considerable part of which output is being sent abroad through the Dutch-Snell and other foreign interests.

Government's Direct Interest.

Consequently the Government feels a direct interest in seeing that available foreign fields should not pass away from American control. Production from these foreign fields is part of the conservation system of which Teapot Dome and Elk Hills reserves are an element. Moreover, the administration is anxious to get the last vestige of our controversies with Mexico cleared up.

Stewart would not discuss this phase of the matter beyond saying that it was at Morrow's request that he had planned to spend a week in Mexico City. On the other hand, he did not disguise the fact that the preemptory summons from Washington gave the foreign interests an advantage in the race for the oil fields.

"However," he said philosophically, "that's water over the dam. They want me in a hurry and there is nothing I can do but answer the summons. But I wish they would not accuse me of running away, or talk about my having violated a gentleman's agreement."

HAVANA, Jan. 27.—Col. Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the Board of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, will return to Washington as soon as he can get there to answer the summons of the Senate oil slush fund committee.

He is much annoyed at the interruption of important business in which he is engaged, is sure that he should be accused of breaking faith, and insists that his departure from the United States was without mystery, for when he left no intimation that the committee wanted him had reached him.

Moreover, he means to tell Senator Walsh of Montana and the others of the committee members everything he could. That has been his position all along, he says.

"What will you tell them about the destination of the balance of the Continental Co.'s profits?" he was asked.

"That," he said, "is my business," adding that courtesy to the committee demanded that he should not discuss his testimony in advance.

Resents Being Called Home.

Stewart is a big, breezy individual, with none of the usual reticence of international business men. His resentment of the manner of his being called home was obvious; his annoyance at being to Washington to answer the summons of the Senate oil slush fund committee was also apparent.

This morning's boat is the first he can take back to the mainland. His soreness and the uncertainty of what will happen when he gets to Washington are not interfering with his diversions. He tied up yesterday with John Barnett, Democratic National Committee man from Colorado, also an oil man, and later went to the horse races.

"I am taking the first boat to Key West," he declared. "I have got some things to attend to in Chicago, but I will be in Washington by next Wednesday. We intend to go on the witness stand before the committee and answer every question put to me."

Violated No Agreement.

"You tell me the newspapers record that I am charged with having violated a gentleman's agreement to appear Jan. 24. That is absurd. I have been ready at all times to testify. The Messrs. Pomerene and Roberts have had me in their own offices, and machine-gunned me with interrogations. I was in attendance on the Fall-Sinclair trial for three weeks, waiting to be called, when the case was interrupted. I was advised to come back Jan. 16."

"Before that time I received a telegram from our counsel in Washington, Mr. Stephens, that it would be my right to return by Jan. 24. Later I was informed by Messrs. Pomerene and Roberts, special counsel for the Government, that the case had gone over until later. I know nothing about the committee and the first word I got that it wanted me was when I saw it in a Havana newspaper Wednesday."

On Mission for U. S.

"Business of great importance, not only to me and my company, but to the United States demands my presence in Mexico. I had arranged to sail for that country Monday. This was at the request of Ambassador Morrow to aid in clearing up the oil situation there. I had notified our executives to meet me there Feb. 5."

That business all goes by the board. I am taking the first boat I can get back to the United States. I can not see what difference it would make if I put my week in Mexico and appeared before the committee not later than Feb. 15. "All of these plans were known to the committee. Our Washington attorney, Stephens, told Senator Nye, chairman of the committee, all about it and there was a suggestion that I should not go. The idea that I am or ever have been a fugitive from a subpoena is as ridiculous as it is unfair. Everything I know is at the service of the committee. I will not be a contumacious witness in any respect."

Col. Stewart came to Havana because he and his group were on account of the Pan-American conference some of the highest and most important men in the governments of the Latin-American republics. The Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, when refused drilling permits in Mexico, found its output from its Tampico refinery reduced from 120,000 barrels a day to 50,000. It made up the deficit by jumping into the Venezuelan field, from which it is now getting 70,000 to 75,000 barrels a day.

It was for the purpose of arranging this that he left the United States last month, Stewart said. The competition for the South American oil fields is intense between the American companies and the Dutch-Snell interests, in which British capital has a vast share. Negotiations have also been started with Colombia.

Stewart left Venezuela for Havana to meet Ambassador Morrow here. The two went over the Mexican situation and Morrow told him his presence in Mexico City would be of importance in clearing up affairs there. With the oil output decreased the Mexican Government is deprived of a vast volume of tax revenues. Consequently that Government is looking for a graceful way of bringing about a resumption of operations after the oil fields.

This situation has all been talked about among the Latin-American delegates in Havana. Stewart is one of those countries having oil potentialities, and it was no surprise to them when Stewart appeared and had his conference with Morrow and with various cabinet officers from below the isthmus.

Morrow, on his return to Mexico this week from Havana, cabled of arrangements for meetings between Col. Stewart and President Calles. Indeed, it is not impossible that this opportunity to straighten out the oil mess was the real reason for Morrow's hurrying away after he had been in Havana a week.

HAVANA, Jan. 27.—Pacific Coast problems were brought into the discussions of Pan-American affairs at the conference today when Jose Antezana, chairman of the Bolivian delegation, delivered a speech to the Pan-American Union committee on his advocacy, an ocean outlet for his country. Neither "Pan-Americanism" nor permanent peace can ever be established on the continent as long as Bolivia is deprived of its outlet to the sea, he said.

Antezana told the committee that it was impossible to speak of "Pan-Americanism" while the nation exists which cannot enjoy fully one of the conditions which Secretary Hughes has mentioned as its "pillars," namely independence, and, he added, independence is not possible with a total lack of port facilities such as Bolivia's isolated condition now presents.

"All delegates to the convention," Antezana continued, "know that this nation exists isolated among mountains and deprived of any outlet to the sea. It will never be possible to do anything for harmony and co-operation and to establish peace on this hemisphere on a permanent basis without providing a solution to the Bolivian problem."

Union Preamble Discussed.

Jose Salazar, of the Peruvian delegation, following Antezana, contended that the proposed preamble to the convention of the Pan-American Union Committee should be more than a mere declaration of fundamental principles of Pan-Americanism. He contended it should constitute an actual organic act of its existence.

Salazar said that a comprehensive formula which would include positive concepts of equality of the countries concerned should be sought. Therein should appear clearly the principle of co-operation among American republics as well as principles included in Salvador's resolution last week, he added. This resolution, he reminded, emphasized rights of equality and independence.

It was Salazar's suggestion that the preamble might read that the Pan-American Union should constitute an organism of co-operation and co-ordination for the evolution of American countries' righteous, intellectual and cultural activities, with full realization, however, of each other's independence and perfect equality, which realization must ever be the basis of the union.

Charles Evans Hughes, head of the United States delegates, expressed full approval of the opinions that had been given on the subject, which, he said, should be broad enough to remove all doubt that it was intended as a limitation rather than an exposition of Pan-Americanism. In this connection he suggested that the preamble should not contain direct mention of concrete cases but rather should be so fundamental that all eventualities would be covered. He expressed approval of the proposal entered by Antezana that a sub-committee be appointed for preparing a text of the preamble.

Mexico Tries a Lone Hand.

Mexico played a lone hand this morning in the Pan-American Union Committee in its proposed reorganization scheme. Jacobo Varella, Uruguayan delegate, reiterated his opposition to such a proposal, but said that, in his opinion, the situation could only be clarified by naming a sub-committee of reporters to make a study of the concrete revised resolution for the ultimate study of the committee.

Mexico opposed this stand, saying that the rights of all nations should be considered and the matter put up to a majority vote. Hughes viewed the situation as offering one in which committee action by majority vote was necessary. SCIENCE EVOLVING NEW HUMAN TYPE

Paul Valery of French Immortals, Hopes Soul Will Catch Up With Machine.

PARIS, Jan. 27.—The machigle says Paul Valery, one of France's "Forty Immortals," is outstanding the soul.

Valery, who occupies the seat in the French Academy vacated by Anatole France, thinks that America may play a great part in helping the "soul catch up with the machine."

The world, he says, is passing through one of the great transitions of history.

"Science," he said, "is gradually creating a new type of human being just as it is creating conditions of living unknown in the world's previous history."

"Already material aspects of living are approaching what they will be in the future; they have the precision, the exactitude, one might almost say the perfection, of machines. On the other hand, things of the mind, the spirit, the sentiments, lag behind. They use a language of many centuries ago which has little or no relation with the present and future."

"Philosophy, religion, art, literature, politics, economics—all the nonmaterial aspects of life—need to catch up with the material. We are beginning to understand this, to appreciate the need for thinking as clearly as a modern machine works; we are, therefore, in a period of transition."

"In the world of material things—in machinery, for example—we are always improving, never content. In our culture, too, we need higher standards. We don't think as expert workmen in one kind of industry, but in every other kind. Hence, why do we assume that every cultured person can understand every culture?"

"That was the mistake of the nineteenth century which was a period of easy-going variety and confusion. The twentieth century is moving from looseness to precision, from disorganization to a new discipline with higher requirements."

America—the land which has carried machinery further towards perfection than any other—may therefore be a leader, thinks Valery, in bringing about the new cultural discipline.

$40,000 PLAN FOR IMPROVEMENT OF ST. LOUIS AIRPORT

B. Russell Shaw Submits Design for Night-Flying Equipment of Lambert Field.

FOUR RUNWAYS ALSO LAID OUT

Placing of New Entrance Gate Will Reduce the Distance to the City by One Mile.

A new entrance to Lambert-St. Louis field, almost a mile nearer St. Louis than the present gate on Bridgeton Station road, is provided by B. Russell Shaw, airport designer, in plans for the development of the field as a municipal air-drome.

The plan, submitted to Director of Public Welfare Salisbury, provides for draining the 246-acre field and lighting it with the latest night-flying equipment, the improvements to be paid for out of the $40,000 recently appropriated by the Board of Aldermen for the purpose in an ordinance which set aside $10,000 additional for the same of 76 acres adjoining the present field of 170 acres. Shaw's plans include the consolidation of these tracts by grading and draining.

For the present the field runway will not be built. That is to be done later, city officers hope, when St. Louis has passed a $1,000,000 bond issue to be submitted next November for the enlargement and permanent equipment of the field. Meanwhile, however, Shaw's plan includes the laying out of four runways 200 feet wide and ranging in length from 2400 to 3600 feet. The runways are laid out to allow planes to land into the wind no matter what direction it blows.

The proposed new flying field is located on the west side of the field near the Bridgeton car line over St. Thomas street. About this entrance Shaw would group the administration building to be erected for the field officers. The proposed airplane factories of the Curtis-Robertson Aircraft Corporation and B. F. Mahoney Aircraft Corporation would be placed on the west side of the airfield near the St. Louis railroad.

Shaw, Director Salisbury, Superintendent of Parks Streible and others interested in the development of the field are to meet today at the City Hall to discuss the plans before actual work on the field is begun. It is probable that the work will be completed in the late spring.

Shaw's plans include the consolidation of these tracts by grading and draining.

For the present the field runway will not be paved. That is to be done later, city officers hope, when St. Louis has passed a $1,000,000 bond issue to be submitted next November for the enlargement and permanent equipment of the field. Meanwhile, however, Shaw's plan includes the laying out of four runways 200 feet wide and ranging in length from 2800 to 3600 feet. The runways are laid out to allow planes to land into the wind no matter what direction blows.

The proposed new flying field entrance would bring visitors into the field near the Bridgeport car wash over St. Thomas street. About the entrance Shaw would group the administration building to be erected for the field officers. The proposed airplane factories of the Curtiss-Robertson Aircraft Corporation and B. F. Mahoney Aircraft Corporation would be placed on the west side of the airfield near the Shaw railroad.

Shaw, Director Salisbury, Superintendent of Parks, Strehle and others interested in the development of the field are to meet today at the City Hall to discuss the plans for actual work on the field is begun. It is probable that the work will be completed in the late spring.

REISELT SETS RECORD, BEATING DENTON IN TITLE 3-CUSHION MATCH

CHAMPION RUNS OUT HIS STRING IN 253 INNINGS

Best Previous Mark Was 293 Made in Game With Copulos—Final Score Is 300 to 189.

Taberski Beats Woods to Retain "Pool" Honors

By the Associated Press. PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 27.—The world's pocket billiard championship still remains in the possession of Frank Taberski of this city. He defeated the challenger, Arthur Woods, of Pawtucket, R. I., in the third and final book of their match here last night, 457 to 311, and won the match, 457 to 306.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 27.—Along the amazing trail of billiard successes he has blazed, Otto Reisel, Philadelphia's three-cushion champion, passed the third milestone last night and the crown is still safe. Tiff Denton of Kansas City was the man whose cue was carved to make a roman holiday for the king and he lowered his colors at 300 to 189, as Reisel established a new world's record, shattering the mark he himself created.

When Otto scored his three-hundredth billiard, it was in the two hundred and fifty-third inning. When Reisel ran out against this Copulos in standing off the thrusts of the challenger he required 253 sessions, a record at that time.

Reisel triumphed, 60 to 35 and 40 to 24, in the final books and, when the Mid-Westerner took up his stick and went his way, it marked the third time in several months that Otto had successfully held the throne against the onslaughts of the challengers. First it was Copulos, then Hall, followed by Denton.

The story of the match is the story of the complete dominance of Reisel and the utter rout of the challenger. The truth is that a man was never beaten so badly in championship competition. Witness the statistics that show Reisel never to have surrendered a book with the scores 60-45, 60-46, 60-35, 60-35 and 60-34. Reisel won in 49 and 44 innings, respectively, yesterday, and rose to brilliant heights in both games.

Never Saw Such Billiards. Denton had faith in himself to win. So confident was the Ozark traveler that he would be crowned champion that he bet $2500. And there was never a time during the match when Denton seriously threatened to crash through or even come close.

"I never saw such billiards," declared Denton just before leaving for the West.

In the afternoon victory, Reisel broke away to a streak calculated to take the starch out of the most confident. From the twenty-second to thirty-ninth session Otto scored 44 billiards. This run came as a great surprise as also surprising was the completion of the game in 49 innings. The game started very slowly, it was a typical afternoon start and was really very tiresome. Neither player seemed to break into his stride and at the end of the eighteenth inning Reisel was in the lead, 8 to 7. Then came the deluge and it left Denton a very much dampened person.

ST. MARKS DEFEATS ST. MATTHEWS TO TIE FOR SOCCER LEAD
The St. Marks eleven is now tied with St. Matthews for the lead in the Parochial School Soccer League as a result of defeating the first place team yesterday afternoon, 1 to 0.

Hennessy registered the only score of the game when he took a pass from Capt. Murphy and went through the St. Matthew center.

Wray's New President Of Tennis Body

Cruelty Is Right.
BLACK GOLD is dead because Hanley Webb, his trainer, insisted that every other trainer in New Orleans was wrong. Webb declared the great derby winner of 1924 was sound enough to stand training. But all other good judges who knew the situation counseled against it. And so Black Gold went to the races, broke down and was shot.

In justifying himself Webb says Black Gold always "worked" lame, but that the lameness passed off in 10 minutes. He declared he believed the gallant little black was in no worse shape than he had been in his earlier racing days.

He guessed wrong and his mistake inflicted great pain and suffering on the racer that deserved comfort and ease.

Black Gold's case is only one of many. Because of the derby winner's reputation his rather tragic end gained widespread notice. But literally scores of sore-footed and dicky-legged horses annually are sent to the races, where they are to be turned out to grass, instead.

The jockey clubs throughout the country and the new American Turf Association in particular could do worse than have all race horses inspected and approved by its own veterinarians.

The Case of Gold Heels.
PERHAPS the most flagrant case of running a broken-down horse without due consideration for his suffering occurred here in St. Louis in 1904 during the running of the 150,000 World's Fair Handicap at the Fair Grounds.

The association sought the entries of all the famous horses in the country. Among the outstanding thoroughbreds of that time was Gold Heels, winner of the classic Suburban Handicap, but a horse that had broken down.

Notwithstanding his condition Gold Heels was entered at the instance of the association and brought here for training. In the opinion of the writer this was done for advertising purposes only. Gold Heels did not stand training. During the race he broke down pitifully.

The Most Punished Horse.
PERHAPS the outstanding case of racing a dicky-legged horse occurred during the days of the St. Louis Fairgrounds and Delmar tracks when Captain R. R. Rice, called "Lace Curtains" Rice because of his long whiskers, campaigned a string which included the grand old cripple Wax Taper, a son of the great Candlemas, and that celebrated "hop horse," "W. B. Gates."

A great and willing race horse was Wax Taper. Nothing in the West could beat him when conditions suited him. But his legs were bad, "spots" and "freezing" were employed to bolster his "props." As long as his legs were cool Wax Taper was a great horse. But the pounding of a race so heated up his dicky legs that by the time the race was over the "dope" had worn off and the game old cripple all too often hobbled painfully back to the judges' stand.

With all his bad feet he was a great winner and was taken East for a killing. All St. Louis knew about it. But the advertised killing did not come off then because his price was hammered down to nothing, before the race, as a result of the heavy Western plunge.

His next start, however, Wax Taper tow-roped his field at a good figure.

What Wax Taper suffered as a result of his patient willingness can only be guessed from his pathetic appearance after each of his efforts. But everywhere he was permitted to run.

DR. DIEKNEITE NEW PRESIDENT OF TENNIS BODY

Succeeds Werner as Head of District Association—Will Ask for 1930 National Meetings.

By Davison Ober.

Dr. Frank Diekneite was elected president of the St. Louis District Tennis Association at the annual meeting of the organization held at the University Club last night. He was advanced from the vice presidency and succeeds Joseph L. Werner, former Princeton University captain as head of the district body.

During the past five years, Dr. Diekneite has served in various capacities. In addition to being chairman of the Triple A Club tennis committee several years ago he was an active member of the committee in charge of the National Clay Court championship held here in 1924 and 1925.

Other officers and members of the Executive Committee elected for the season of 1928 are Karl H. Hodge, first vice president; Martin Telle, second vice president; Charles W. Barnes, secretary; Wray D. Brown, treasurer; Harvey Frohlichstein, Dr. George H. Rice, Fred O. Jostles, Karl Kammann, Davison Ober, Harold G. Brouster, Joseph Kelly and Dr. Edgar M. Carson. Hodge was advanced from second vice president, while Telle, formerly secretary, was named second vice president.

Barnes succeeds Telle, while Brown was re-elected treasurer. The three new members of the Executive Committee are Brouster, Kelly and Carson.

The former presidents elected to the Executive Committee were C. Drummond Jones, Roland M. Hoerr, Calvin P. Bascom, Andrew B. Lynn and Joseph L. Werner. Werner and Karl Kammann were named delegates to the Missouri Valley Tennis Association.

A new constitution and by-laws was adopted by the delegates. One of the principal changes over the old regulations provides for an increase in the Executive Committee from 15 to 18 members.

It was decided to ask the U. S. L. T. A. to hold its 1930 national meeting here. A protest on the men's rankings also was taken under consideration.

Billy Barton Is 16 to 1 Shot in Grand National Odds Drop From 33 to 1 Following American Horse's Victory at Newbury.

By the Associated Press. LONDON, Jan. 27.—Billy Barton, by his spectacular and unexpected victory at Newbury, yesterday, jumped to third place in the Grand National betting, being quoted today at 16 to 1 against previous quotations of 33 to 1.

Stephen Sanford's English-bred Bright's Boy is the favorite for the Liverpool classic at 12 to 1, while Newell Cairn's Trump Card is second at 14 to 1.

Billy Barton, which is owned by Howard Bruce of Baltimore, took the Winchester Handicap steeplechase at Newbury against 13 other horses yesterday in his first public appearance on the British track. The Grand National will be run on March 30.

FRANCIS APPLEY IN LEAD IN AMATEUR 18.1 TITLE TOURNEY
NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Francis S. Appley, defending champion, today is the undisputed leader in the national amateur 18.1 balking billiard tournament. He is the only undefeated player. Appley defeated Jacob Klingner, 250 to 88.

Other scores: Herbert Hammer 250, Edgar Appley 199. Elvin Edwards 250, Maurice Parker 218. Klingner 250, Parker 248.

as a 3-year-old and won a smashing race in the Blue Grass Stakes at Lexington, then estemed a "derby trial." But before the Derby he broke down and it was feared he could not represent the Bradley stable in the big event.

The three took a chance and sent Busy American to the post—and to the quick and painful end of his racing career. At the very first turn when Busy American started to "prop" on his weak leg, it gave way and he collapsed—his racing days finished.

It would seem possible to prevent such extremes of racing cruelty, if jockey clubs reserved the right to have their own veterinarians report on the fitness of all starters. It would also prevent the public from wasting a lot of money on forlorn hopes.

Billikens Ready For Louisville U. Contest Tonight

Flynn, Star Guard, Only Regular Not Likely to Start Game.

The St. Louis University basketball team will make another attempt to return to its winning streak which had mounted to eight games before the Loyola Ramblers won the first victory for the opponents, in a game tonight with the undefeated Louisville University quintet at the Billikens gymnasium, Spring and Pine. Starting time is 8 o'clock.

Coach Regatt's team will play the second game of the week tomorrow night on its home court in a tilt that is expected to prove more difficult, with the Concordia Seminary Preachers, with four previous victories, as the opposition.

Steps now are being taken to put the veteran former mile champion back in good standing. His case first will be acted on by Roy O. Davis of Chicago, chairman of the Central A. A. U. Association's registration committee. "Nothing doing. It goes 60-40." And it did.

In the years since that battle was fought under the blazing heat of a Nevada sun, there has been persistent reports that some clique poisoned Jeff and having accomplished the deed, promptly wagged vast sums of money at the last minute on Johnson to win. That is all bunk.

As I stated in the preceding article, I did the betting commission in Reno. The bulk of the money wagered in the United States on the outcome of that fight, was put up in Reno—and I handled it. At no time was there any sudden plunge; that the play was steady, throughout, and that the betting during the last 36 hours was normal.

The real truth is that I had more money than was ordered placed on Jeffries than I had for Johnson. And that, in itself, proves that there was no "last minute wild plunging on the Negro" which some pop-eyed reporters since have declared "broke the betting market and sent Johnson into the ring a favorite."

Why Jeff Was Favorite.
JOHNSON always should have been better favorite for that fight. Here is the reason why he wasn't.

Soon after Jeff and Johnson were matched, Alfred W. Meyerstein, president of one of the banks in San Francisco, sauntered into the old bar of the St. Francis Hotel in San Francisco. Naturally Meyerstein was a strong Johnson man, and thought the Negro would win with ease. While he was in the cafe, Clarence Berry, who had made a fortune in the Klondike, sauntered in and introductions followed. Berry, who was one of Jeff's fellow townsmen, promptly proceeded to voice his views as to the outcome of the battle and Welter Bout Postponed.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Jan. 27.—Pete Latoro of Scranton, former welterweight champion, who was scheduled to meet Maxie Rosenthal of New York in a 10-round bout here tonight, is suffering a severe attack of grip and the bout has been postponed until Feb. 6.

SHOULDERS WILL BOX ROBERTS AT COLISEUM
United States Army fistic rivals will meet in a middleweight preliminary of the New Coliseum boxing card, Feb. 6, according to an announcement from Matchmaker Jack Tippet, stating that he had matched Clarence "Kid" Shaulders of Scott Field, to oppose Ted Roberts of Jefferson Barracks, for a six-round engagement.

Two more six-rounders and a four-round bout are planned. The star bouts will feature Chuck Wiggins and Jimmy Byrne, heavyweights and Tom Pivac and Jimmy Mahoney, light-heavyweights, in a pair of 10-round contests.

RAY TO ATTEMPT 'COMEBACK' FOR OLYMPIC GAMES

Famous Runner Is Training Daily Under Old Coach—Holds American Record for 1000 Yards and Mile.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—The lure of the 1928 Olympic games and a determination to square accounts with Paavo Nurmi, have brought Joe Ray, one of America's fastest milers out of his two-year athletic retirement.

Shortly after Ray's defeat by Nurmi, he announced his retirement from the track and found employment in the steel mills at Gary, Ind. But the spell of the track was too much for him, however, and every morning after work he reports to his coach, Johnny Behr of the Illinois Athletic Club, for practice.

Behr, like Ray, is confident his pupil has more than an even chance to return to his old time form, make the American Olympic team again and possibly turn the tables on Nurmi. He reports Ray is training hard and seriously.

Ray, who is still under 30, was the ace of American milers from 1915 to 1923. He still holds the Amateur Athletic Union records in the 1000 yards and one mile.

Ray Believes to Be Still "Amateur."
By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—So far as the National Amateur Athletic Union is concerned, there is nothing new in Joe Ray's record to prevent him from registering again as an amateur and returning to indoor competition.

Two years ago Ray turned in his A. U. card and announced he intended to turn professional. It was understood he planned to work in a sporting goods business and assist in advertising in a manner which would prevent him from retaining, at the same time, any amateur status. So far as records here show, however, Ray did not professionalize himself, nevertheless he dropped out of competition.

Steps now are being taken to put the veteran former mile champion back in good standing. His case first will be acted on by Roy O. Davis of Chicago, chairman of the Central A. A. U. Association's registration committee. "Nothing doing. It goes 60-40." And it did.

CITY TAX TO BE ADDED TO ADMISSIONS TO BOXING SHOW

FIGHTERS BALK AT EXTRA CUT INTO RECEIPTS

Jack Tippet, Matchmaker for Stockholm Post of Legion, Announces Policy for Bouts Feb. 6.

By Damon Kerby.

The city on professional boxing will be added to the price of admission tickets, on the card to be held at the New Coliseum, Feb. 6, under the auspices of the American Legion, it was announced today by Jack Tippet, matchmaker. This action will be taken, according to Tippet, because boxers scheduled on the card refuse to sign contracts on a percentage basis unless 95 per cent of the gate receipts are divided. The deduction of the State tax of 5 per cent has not brought complaint from the boxers. But they will not stand for a further deduction of 5 per cent of the city.

"There is no reason why the promoter should pay the city tax out of his own pocket either," explained Tippet, "and for this reason we are adding the city tax to the price of admission. Probably some of the customers will kick, and if they do, it may bring the tax question to a head."

The tax question referred to by Tippet is the situation in which the local boxing promoter finds himself today—facing a triple tax on city, State and Government. As the contention of those close to the ring game here that the city commission has outgrown its usefulness with the advent of the State commission under the new State law, and that the city commission should dissolve in the interests of the game. Should the city commission dissolve the city boxing tax would be abolished.

The Government tax of 10 per cent is usually added to the price the customer pays for his ticket, but in boxing events promoted by the American Legion under certain conditions there is no Government tax imposed.

Prices for the coming bout of Feb. 6, in which "Chuck" Wiggins of Indianapolis will meet Jimmy Byrne of Louisville, will range from $4.20 down to $1.05, Tippet announced. The $4.20 seats will be at ringside. Other seats downstairs will be $2.15; boxes and seats in the balcony opposite the ring will cost $15; and other balcony seats $10 and $1.05.

Dave Knott, National A. A. U. amateur heavyweight champion, is likely to sign for an appearance on the card, according to Tippet, who declared that if Knott does turn professional, he will appear in three bouts during the present season under Tippet's promotion.

Knott has been inactive for some time due to the inability of local promoters of amateur bouts to find suitable opponents. Tippet has started negotiations with several heavyweights to oppose him, should he sign a professional contract.

ONE GRID TITLE WORTH SIX AT BASKETBALL, "FOG" ALLEN DECLARES

Dr. Forrest C. (Fog) Allen, director of athletics at the University of Kansas, told alumni at a luncheon at the City Club today he would rather Kansas win one basketball championship than six basketball championships.

Dr. Allen, who has coached six championship basketball teams, said basketball was still "an infant sport" and football remained the college sport of greatest interest because it contained the element of primitive conflict.

Referring to charges that he had failed to support football at the U. S. Dr. Allen said it was ridiculous to suppose he would have sponsored the building of an athletic stadium with 35,000 seats, the largest in the Missouri Valley, if he had not wanted football to succeed. Personally, he said, he would rather coach football than basketball.

He said football prospects for next season, with Bill Hargiss, an experienced coach at the helm, were better than in several years.

The Associated Press. LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 27.—Roland Locke, world's champion 220-pound dash champion, and "Fut" "Chief" Elkins, holder of the National A. A. U. decathlon championship, University of Nebraska, counted on as valuable material for the Olympic team this year, will demonstrate their ability in connection with the first variety track tryouts here tomorrow.

Both men are in training under Coach Schulte, who has been chosen a member of the Olympic coaching staff.

Heh! Heh!

Stoneham is still explaining the Hornsby deal. And the more he explains the funnier he gets. In his latest elucidation Stoneham assumes full responsibility, absolving McGraw from being a party to the transaction, which was entirely unnecessary as few, if any, thought that Mac had anything to do with it.

Rogers no doubt will get a big kick out of Stoneham's statement that with McGraw away the club adopted different methods, that the hours were different, that the general method of procedure was different and that while it may have been for the better, it did not embody the spirit of McGraw, whatever that is.

The Spirit of McGraw.

O H, Rogers, dear, and did you hear the news that's going round?

The reason for that famous trade has finally been found: A winning spirit you instilled, but promptly Stoneham saw.

That in them you could not instill the Spirit of McGraw.

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 27.—"Chuck" Wiggins beat Bob Lawson here last night in 10 rounds of the fiercest fighting seen since boxing became legalized in Michigan. It looked like the fight was won in the fourth round when Lawson was dropped for a nine-count, but he returned to put up a stiff battle until the final gong.

Officials to Let Army and Navy Settle Own Row

President and War Department Not Making Moves to Heal Athletic Breach.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—It was state flatly today at the White House that President Coolidge has taken no part in the dispute between est Point and Annapolis over football regulations.

It was said that the President's interest in the disagreement between the two service institutions was of the most casual nature and his knowledge of the dispute which threaten to prevent their annual football game next fall, was confined to what he had seen in the newspapers.

The White House comment was occasioned by a statement in today's New York World that President Coolidge was ready to see that the game was played.

No Known Conciliation Move.

New conciliation moves to save the 1928 football game appear to have failed.

It was said at the War Department that no further conference on the subject between the superintendents of West Point and Annapolis was in prospect, so far as is known here. This was interpreted to mean that proposals outside the service for such a meeting had been rejected.

Intimations that a new conference had been suggested followed the visit last Wednesday of Representative Britten of the naval committee, and Representative Fish of New York, to Major-General Sumner, chief of staff, at the War Department. They declined to

Washington Regulars to Oppose Kansas Tonight

Coach White Decides Not to Make Changes in Lineup—Jayhawkers Won 29 to 26 in Extra Period in First Meeting Between Quintets.

Washington University's regular basketball team, the same quintet, which has piled up a record of four victories and three defeats in Missouri Valley competition this season, will start against the University of Kansas in a game at the Bear Field House tonight. Starting time is 8:30 o'clock.

Coach White announced this morning that he would rise or fall with Lehigh and Weintge at the forwards; Meyer jumping at center, and Captain Eckert and Kurz at the guards. Smith, at center, and Stanford, forward, have practiced with the Bear regulars during the week.

The game will be the second between the Bears and Jayhawkers this season. Earlier in the campaign the men of White invaded Lawrence and were downed 29 to 26 in an overtime game. Since then the Kansas team has changed. Two players who participated in that contest, Forward Schmidt and Guard Jeffrey, will be missing. Schmidt has graduated, while Jeffrey is out with a leg injury.

But the Bears will still have to contend with Center Houser. It make public the purpose of their visit, but it was followed by rumors that they had suggested another meeting between Major-General Winans, superintendent of West Point, and Rear Admiral Nulton, superintendent of Annapolis, with high officials of the Army and Navy Departments also participating.

"Feeling" Factor in Situation.

It was made clear at the War Department today that athletic matters at West Point remained entirely in the control of Gen. Winans and his advisors. It was disclosed also that many army officers in Washington feel it would be a mistake to play the navy this year because of the feeling that has been incited by the controversy.

Some officers say privately that service feeling has run so high that an Army-Navy game this year might lose much of its aspect of good sportsmanship. They express the hope that Gen. Winans, since Navy was forced the issue over the eligibility rule to a break, will not under any circumstances recede from his decision not to permit the Army team to meet the Navy this year.

Army Athletic Meet Awarded To the Barracks

Corps Area Championships in Basketball, Boxing and Wrestling to Be Decided.

The annual VI Corps Area army athletic meet has been awarded to Jefferson Barracks, according to word just received at the post, and there will be considerable sports activities thereabouts during the week of March 19 to 24, inclusive.

Basketball, boxing and wrestling championships of the corps area are decided at these meets, the last four of which have been held at Fort Sheridan, just outside Chicago.

Major C. A. Ross will be in charge of the meet here, which is expected to have entries from about six posts, including three flying fields. The corps area comprises Wisconsin, Michigan and Illinois, in addition to Jefferson Barracks. Entries will be accepted up to March 1.

A. A. U. rules and regulations govern the competitions.

The plan of Maj. Ross is for one officer at the Barracks to coach the basketball players among the soldiers stationed here and another to supervise training of boxers and wrestlers.

Hahn May Meet Dr. Peltzer at I. A. C. Carnival

Officials Trying to Book 1000-Yard Race as Feature for Feb. 10.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—Dr. Otto Peltzer, the German half-mile champion, hoped today to arrange with the Illinois Athletic Club officials the conditions that will prevail for his special match race with Lloyd Hahn of Boston at the club's indoor track and field games Feb. 10.

The club officials said both men have entered for a match, the distance and minor conditions remaining to be adjusted. Peltzer has asked the match be for 1000 yards and that distance is thought to be agreeable to Hahn.

Although the Peltzer-Hahn race will feature the meet, the two-mile university relay is attracting considerable interest. Notre Dame, Michigan, Iowa, Ames and Northwestern have entered, and more entries are expected before the list closes Feb. 2.

Cleveland Commission Claims $1000 Posted by Welter Champion—Tickets to Be Redeemed.

By the Associated Press. CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 27.—The boxing match between Joe Dundee, welterweight titleholder, and Clyde Hull of Texas, scheduled for Monday night was called off today by the Cleveland Boxing Commission after receipt of a telegram from Dundee in Baltimore saying that he had injured his thumb, and wanted the match postponed.

Dundee's $1000 appearance money was forfeited.

Edwin Barry, city Safety Director and a member of the Boxing Commission, declared when the telegram reached him that it "looks like these fighters are trying to pull a fast one on the commission."

It was announced that all tickets would be refunded.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 27.—Joe Dundee, welterweight champion, will be unable to go through with his scheduled 12-round battle Monday with Clyde Hull in Cleveland, because of a badly injured thumb, his manager, Max Waxman, today telegraphed the Ohio promoters.

Waxman asked a postponement of a week or 10 days. He announced that an X-ray picture of the injured thumb had been taken and forwarded to the Cleveland Boxing Commission.

The Custom of the Day Calls for Serving Savory Sauces With Hot Meats.

Formerly, the housewife prided herself on making rich brown gravies. Now, she forgets about serving gravy with roast and baked meats and specializes on savory sauces. Here are recipes for several of the most popular sauces to serve with meats.

Cranberry Applesauce—Use equal parts of uncooked, dried apples and chopped cranberries. To each two cups of the fruit, add one cup sugar and stir thoroughly.

Pickles and Parsley Sauce—Chop together one tablespoon each of onion and parsley, and combine it with one teaspoon grated fresh horseradish and two teaspoons mixed pickles, chopped. Blend together with little over one-quarter cup of French dressing, and add one chopped, hard-cooked egg.

Creole Sauce—Use a tomato sauce for a base. To each cupful of this add two slices bacon, diced, two teaspoons chopped parsley, one minced green pepper, and two average sized plantains cut in strips. Boil together for about seven minutes and serve.

Mushroom Sauce—Cook a couple of tablespoons chopped onion with two tablespoons butter or substitute for four or five minutes; add one-third cup diluted tomato puree, one and one-quarter cups brown sauce (made from meat gravy) and cook till thickened. Cut one-half cup button mushrooms into pieces, and add to the sauce. Heat thoroughly and serve.

PORK SUGGESTIONS FOR FESTIVE MEALS

Serve One of These Dishes and Have a Different Main Course.

Because pork is produced in such quantities and in such an efficient way, this food comes to the markets at relatively low prices. Its economy, combined with its high food value, is the reason given by the United States Department of Agriculture for the popularity of pork in the American diet.

Crown Roast of Pork. Have a crown roast prepared at the market. Mix one cup of sausage meat with one cup of stale bread crumbs, soften in warm water and squeeze dry. Add additional seasonings if needed. Put the roast in a roasting pan and fill the inside of the crown with the sausage mixture. Place cubes of salt pork over the ends of the ribs to keep the bones from charring. Dredge with salt, pepper and flour and bake in a slow oven between two and three hours. In four tablespoons of melted fat, cook 12 small peeled onions to a delicate brown. Add one cup of stock and let the onions cook until tender. Let the onions will glaze as stock cooks away. Remove the crown carefully to a serving dish, so as to avoid breaking the sausage filling. Place the cooked onions on top of the filling. Remove the fat pork from the ends of the ribs and replace it with raw cranberries. Garnish with parsley and serve with red cinnamon apples.

Pork Chops and Scalloped Potatoes. Slice enough raw peeled potatoes to fill a baking dish. In a frying pan brown on both sides the required number of pork chops. Remove from the pan and make a thin gravy, using milk for the liquid. Pour this over the potatoes, season well with salt and pepper, put the browned chops on top and bake in a moderate oven for 45 minutes or an hour.

English Pork Pie. Cook two pounds of fresh lean pork for half an hour in enough water to cover. Let cool in the liquid, take out and cut into dice. Butter a deep baking dish and put in the meat. Cover with a layer of hard-cooked eggs, sliced; season with minced onion, salt and pepper. Dot with butter and dredge with flour. Thicken the liquid in which the meat was cooked, season with Worcestershire sauce. Pour into the pie, cover with good pastry, and bake for 45 minutes, brush with white of egg and brown.

Tomato Rarebit. One can tomato soup, one cup chopped American cheese, one egg (well beaten), salt to season. Heat the soup to the boiling point, then remove from the fire and stand over hot water; add the cheese, beat the egg and dilute with two tablespoons of cold water. Add the egg to the tomato mixture and serve at once on thin slices of white or whole wheat toast.

Washington Pie. Bake a sponge or layer cake mixture in a deep pie tin. Cool and spread the top with a thick layer of marmalade, fresh slightly sweetened fruit, or any canned fruit drained from the syrup and cut in small pieces. Cover the fruit with a layer of whipped cream or a very cold boiled custard. Sprinkle with grated sweet chocolate or with crushed macaroons and serve cold.

Custard Sauce. Two eggs, one and one-half cups milk, one-quarter cup sugar, one tablespoon corn starch, one-quarter teaspoon salt, one teaspoon vanilla. Beat the eggs until very light, then add the corn starch and sugar mixed together. Scald the milk and add gradually into the egg mixture. Stir constantly over a low fire until the mixture is thickened, smooth and at the boiling point. Remove from the fire, cool slightly, add vanilla and chill before using.

Scotch Broth. Scotch broth made in this manner is a splendid cold-weather dish. Use about four pounds of meat, cover with boiling water, add two onions, a small white turnip diced, two or three carrots diced, and one tablespoon of salt. Cover closely and simmer for one and a half hours, then add one-half to three-fourths cups of barley and cook for another hour. Remove the meat and roast it in a hot oven for about twenty minutes, or just long enough to brown it. Season the broth and add two or three tablespoons of minced parsley.

Nuts High in Food Value. Weight for weight, nuts contain almost four times as much food value as meat. They are rich in fat and furnish body fuel as well as building material. Made into nut loaves, mixed with potatoes to make croquettes, or served in any number of attractive dishes, they are nutritious and offer a change from meat meals.

Apple Juice Healthful. Apple juice should be a more frequent accompaniment to our meals than at present. In its unfermented form there is no other fruit juice more serviceable in the preservation of health.

Suggested Stuffings. Quartered walnut meats. Halved pecan nut meats. Peanuts, plain or salted. Almonds, plain or salted. Strips of candied ginger. Candied cherries. Pieces of candied pineapple. Strips of candied orange or grapefruit peel. Quartered marshmallows. Cooked or uncooked fondant, plain or mixed with chopped coconut. Seeded raisins. Peanut butter.

What a mix-up of cookies, crackers and cakes there are! What a confusion of sizes, shapes and names! We Sunshine Bakers are most anxious that the care we take shall not be lost in a whirlwind of biscuit names. We stand at our ovens, day after day, trying to make the finest biscuits in all the world. Whether we do or not, we are quite willing to leave to your taste.

Long ago we gave our many different kinds of biscuits one family name. We call them Sunshine, because they're full of it... born in it, baked in it. Every one of our packages is so labeled. If you want these things... say so... you can say so with one word... Sunshine, at your grocer's.

Sunshine BISCUITS ...well worth saying whenever you want one-half tablespoon butter, three tablespoons flour, one cup evaporated milk, diluted with one cup water, dash of pepper and a can of peas.

Peas and heat thoroughly over hot water. When turnips are tender, drain them and turn into hot vegetable dish, then pour over the creamed peas. Yield: Six servings.

If you cook rutabagas according to the English fashion it is a most tempting dish. Take one rutabaga, one teaspoon lemon juice, one and one-half pints chicken broth, one and one-half tablespoon butter, one and one-half tablespoon flour, two turnips. Let simmer five minutes, then add the well beaten egg yolks diluted with the evaporated milk. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Add turnips and cook over hot water for 10 minutes.

Balance Your Lunches. A side dish of hot scalloped potatoes makes a luncheon complete.

CLEVER HOUSEWIVES PREPARE QUICK MEALS

They Plan Simple Meals and Have a Supply of Canned Foods on Hand.

There are times in the life of every housekeeper when a meal must be prepared in a hurry—perhaps shopping has taken longer than you had planned; a friend has invited you into attending a social time unexpectedly or housecleaning time has upset the regular schedule—whatever it is, the question usually arises—"What shall I have to eat?"

There is a good old saying, "In time of plenty prepare for want," which can be taken to mean that the well organized housewife will be ready for any emergency, or that the provident housekeeper will see that she has on hand a supply of canned foods and other emergency foods that can be drawn on when needed. This, of course, is an absolute necessity if the housekeeper is so situated that stores are not readily accessible.

A variety of canned soups, vegetables, fruits, cheese, a few boxes of crackers, a jar of salad dressing and a few boxes of potato chips should be kept on hand. In addition, it is a good plan to work out several quickly prepared menus and keep them on file, so that they can be pressed into service.

Keep your emergency shelf stocked with the provisions that these menus call for. For instance, a dinner of canned tomato soup, broiled meat cakes, canned string beans, potato chips and a fruit shortcake made from canned fruit and ready-made sponge cake will take no more than forty minutes at the most to prepare, as the meat is the only thing that requires actual cooking. A hearty of lettuce salad should be added if possible and if cream is available, it is a good addition to the shortcake.

Another good emergency meal is made up of cream of chicken soup with string beans, shrimp wiggle, which is a mixture of canned shrimp, green peas and a well flavored sauce, potato chips and canned fruit salad.

This again will not take more than thirty to forty minutes to prepare. Salad dressing for canned fruit salads is best if it is rather highly flavored with lemon juice, allowing perhaps one tablespoonful to one-quarter cup of mayonnaise. A little cream may also be added to thin out the dressing. If nuts are at hand, a few chopped ones may be sprinkled over the salad to give added food value, or nut cookies may be served as dessert.

KEEP THE REFRIGERATOR ON THE JOB IN WINTER

Food Should Not Go to Waste Through Lack of the Proper Method of Preservation.

It is poor economy to dispense with the services of the refrigerator at any time during the winter months.

With the dropping of the mercury the earnest housewife is all too prone to take the ice card down in the interest of thrift.

The result is that ice is ordered on a warm day, and the refrigerator is unappreciated during the succeeding cold ones so that the next warm day with its accompanying piece of ice, finds the ice compartment entirely empty and the refrigerator thoroughly warm.

Aside from the standpoint of convenience and hygiene a little thought will show that this method does not even bear the merit of economy. That it is, on the contrary, a real extravagance.

A well-built refrigerator contains insulation, the purpose of which is to prevent the entrance of warm air from the outside to the inside. The thicker the walls the more insulation they contain and the harder it is for heat to get through. The result is a minimum decrease in temperature.

However, insulation against heat is insulation against cold. The longer it takes for heat transmission to take place through the walls, that much longer will be required for cold to penetrate once they have been warmed. As long as ice is taken, regularly the refrigerator is habitually cold but when the ice is allowed to get low or melt away the walls begin to warm up and when the new piece of ice is put in, too great a portion is spent in cooling the walls with too little left to cool the mass of the food. The result is the use of two or three times as much ice needed to obtain half the amount of refrigeration.

And all this aside from the amount of food waste due to sudden fluctuations of the thermometer when it may be frozen one day and sour or rancid the next.

Steak for Children. In serving the broiled sirloin steak with onion and tomato, moderate portions of the meat are rare treats for the children. These portions should be merely broiled, dabbled with butter and salt and given to the youngsters with the accompaniment of either fried onions or French fried potatoes.

Dates and Milk Are Nice. No recipe is needed for this service. Dates eaten slowly with a glass of milk form a satisfying, balanced ration. If greater bulk is desired serve toasted whole wheat crackers.

CRISPY CRACKERS HAVE VARIED USES

Made of Choice Materials They Are Wholesome and Healthful Food.

Crackers were served with soup because it was customary; cookies accompanied ice cream because it had always been done—yet no recognition was taken of the real nourishment they contained.

Weight by weight, crackers and bread have almost the same caloric or heat-creating value—with the cracker in the lead. Wheat flour, more shortening than is used in bread, and moisture make up the cracker.

But it is not as moist as bread. That is why it contains more nourishment—it may be called dehydrated bread!

So when introducing crackers and biscuits we must use them as the true foods they are—rather than as the foods they are presented when they are present in quantity or be entirely omitted.

There are various uses for crackers as can be seen in these suggestions:

1. As an accompaniment to bouillions and soups.
2. As a base on which to serve creamed oysters.
3. Heated and browned in the oven and served with hot milk in place of milk toast.
4. As a base for canapés and appetizers.
5. As an accompaniment to or base on which to serve Welsh rarebit.
6. At luncheon as a base on which to serve scrambled eggs, topped with a slice of left-over Welsh rarebit, another cracker, more Welsh rarebit, heat in a quick oven and serve piping hot with sour pickles.
7. For cheese mountains—first a cracker, then a slice of left-over Welsh rarebit, another cracker, more Welsh rarebit, heat in a quick oven and serve piping hot with sour pickles.
8. For cheese mountains—first a cracker, then a slice of left-over Welsh rarebit, another cracker, more Welsh rarebit, heat in a quick oven and serve piping hot with sour pickles.

While crackers, particularly soda crackers and graham crackers are used most frequently as accompanying foods, yet both are also nice when used in combination dishes as for instance in making cracker soup.

Break one-half cupful of crackers into crumbs in the oven. Add one teaspoonful of salt, one-eighth teaspoonful of pepper, two and one-half cupfuls of hot milk. Cook together in a double boiler for 15 minutes or until ready to serve.

How graham crackers may be used in making attractive dishes is demonstrated by graham cracker custard which, made according to this recipe, is a delicious delicacy.

Beat together until light three eggs, one-third cupful of sugar and one-sixth teaspoonful of salt. Pour over them, slowly, three cupfuls of scalded milk, flavor with one-half teaspoonful of vanilla and turn into a buttered baking dish. Cover with lightly buttered graham crackers (it may be necessary to cut some of these into halves in order to make them fit in the dish). Put the custard into a pan containing hot water and bake in a slow oven—about 325 to 350 degrees F.—until firm and set.

WHAT'S IN A NAME AS REGARDS FOOD

Some of the most nutritious foods are least expensive such as, for instance, tripe, brains, or liver, yet there are a number of people who are prejudiced against them simply because of their names or the fact that they are organs of an animal instead of the muscle, and who declare they do not like them though they have never given themselves the chance to find out by tasting them.

Again some member of the family does not like rabbit because of its looks. Someone else is prejudiced against shell fish for no good reason at all, while the third member of the family declares with much vim that he can never eat oysters, and so it goes.

However, a canny housewife, by using a little psychology and knowledge can so conceal the nature of a food that the family will eat it by some new name and usually pass the plates for a second serving.

A thick lusciously flavored soup can be made from tripe and served as mock turtle. The person who "never eats tripe" will like as not crave the mock soup and ask to use of two or three times as much ice needed to obtain half the amount of refrigeration.

And all this aside from the amount of food waste due to sudden fluctuations of the thermometer when it may be frozen one day and sour or rancid the next.

Steak for Children. In serving the broiled sirloin steak with onion and tomato, moderate portions of the meat are rare treats for the children. These portions should be merely broiled, dabbled with butter and salt and given to the youngsters with the accompaniment of either fried onions or French fried potatoes.

Dates and Milk Are Nice. No recipe is needed for this service. Dates eaten slowly with a glass of milk form a satisfying, balanced ration. If greater bulk is desired serve toasted whole wheat crackers.

HOW TO MAKE A MERINGUE
Baked Too Fast It Toughens;
Cooled Too Quickly It Wrinkles.
There are two points to remember in making a successful meringue. One is thorough beating so as to incorporate a large quantity of air and the second is slow baking. For a medium-sized pie two egg whites and three tablespoons of sugar are usually enough. Have the egg whites very cold and beat them until they are almost stiff enough to stand alone.

Then add the sugar—either granulated or powdered. Continue beating for at least three minutes or until the meringue is stiff enough to stand in points when the egg beater is lifted out. Spread lightly over the pie and bake in a slow oven—100 to 215 degrees—for eight to 10 minutes or until brown. Cool slowly. If the meringue is baked too fast it will be very tough and will shrink on cooling.

Food Versus Tonics.
It is much better to take your iron in the natural way, rather than to get in the form of pills or from a bottled mixture. No more available method can be pointed out than to get the iron by eating beans or other legumes.

5 1/4 market to respond to our strength yester-previous close. The decline, however seems to attract considerable investment from the U.S. and other foreign buyers. At midday they were back within a point or two of the previous close. Cables from Cuba said the government commission late yesterday confirmed sales of 323,000 tons of Cuban at 2.38¢ for Cuban, equal to around 4.30¢ delivered here. The commission also said that during the past three days 370,000 tons, or more than half the amount allotted for export to European buyers out of the new restricted Cuban quota of 4,000,000 tons.

In refined sugar, business continued a filling-in character. Prices were unchanged for the most part.

Sugar futures close steady; approximately 56,000 tons: March, 2.35¢; Apr., 2.31¢; Sept., 2.95¢.

MEDITATIONS —OF A— MARRIED WOMAN

By HELEN ROWLAND

WHAT EVERY WIFE KNOWS
A man is as old as he feels—but a woman is as old as her husband MAKES her feel.

He can make her feel like a kitten—or like "an old horse that ought to be shot."

Just the look in his eyes can make her feel "cute" and irresistible, or foolish and passe.

He can make her feel smart, clever and altogether desirable—or shapless and out of date.

She sees herself in his eyes as in a full-length mirror; and he can cover her with a flattering rose-glow of admiration or turn upon her a searchlight and cover her with confusion and an inferiority complex.

It's all in the light in his eyes—which is either one of warm admiration and approval, or a cold north light of disapproval and disinterest, which makes her shiver and feel her full age.

A woman can feel the protective, possessive and approving gaze of her husband from the other end of the room, even when he is apparently absorbed in something or somebody else; or she can be acutely conscious of his cold disapproval, even though SHE may be absorbed in something else.

The attention and devotion of other men may make her feel young and alluring for an evening. But her husband can "take it all OUT of her," with a word or a glance, when they get home.

Or, if other men have been inattentive and neglectful, her husband can "make it all up to her" and re-establish her faith in her perennial charms, with just a few words and a tender kiss.

Men are different. A woman may be able to make her husband feel deep, awkward, ashamed, stupid, confused or even altogether wrong—but she can never make him feel OLD. Only his arteries can do that!

But a woman's arteries may be as good as new and her age nothing to lie about; yet with a simple twist of the corner of his smile, a mere dash of criticism or sarcasm, or a cold indifferent glance, he can make her feel like Methuselah.

Alas, it's SO hard to penetrate a man's self-complacency. It sustains him through his middle-age, his Indian summer and even his tottering twilight.

But a woman's vanity is a fragile flower, which is kept alive only by the tenderest care and ministrations of the adoring male.

In other words, a man can make his wife feel like a charming "spoiled child" or like a "spoiled" piece of fruit, ready for the discard.

Ask the wife. SHE knows!

Man Is Leader Of the Feminist Fight in France

THE "daddy" of women's suffrage, when it comes in France, will be Senator Louis Martin. France's leading feminist and outstanding scraper for women's enfranchisement. Through his efforts, Premier Poincaré was recently induced to pledge the Government's support to the proposition of municipal voting privileges for women, the first step the present Government has made toward recognition of feminist demands.

Twice Senator Martin has proposed passage of women's suffrage bills by the French Senate, after they had been passed by the Chamber of Deputies. Both times the proposal was defeated. His latest effort to bring the motion a third time before the Senate was defeated in committee.

After that happened the undaunted "father of feminism" was able to get the Poincaré government's endorsement of municipal women's suffrage and when the proposal comes to a vote with the reversion of the Upper House early this year many astute politicians are prophesying it will pass.

Mme. Maria Verone, president of one of France's leading suffrage organizations, possesses a letter from Premier Poincaré pledging the support of his government to the women's municipal vote proposition.

If the Senate responds favorably to the Government's recommendation French women will receive municipal voting privileges in the 1929 elections along with the right to hold municipal office. They will still have ahead of them the fight that American women won with the passage of the Susan B. Anthony amendment and which English women are now making in the "flapper" campaign, for equal voting rights with men.

A Beneficial Lunch.

My boy never ate between meals until he started school; then naturally he wanted something to eat along with the other youngsters. However, this tiny bite can be nourishing by having graham crackers or homemade cookies on hand and putting one, never over two, in a lady's pocket for the little lunch.

Washboard Braces.

A laundress tells of a very helpful washing wrinkle. She has two washboards secured on the back of her washboard, which act as braces to hold the board on the top of the tub and prevent its slipping down into the suds, frequently causing scraped knuckles as well as the splash.

DARING BRIDGE PLAYER WINS, WHITEHEAD SAYS

But Good Judgment Must Go
With Courage—Conservatism Loses, He Declares.

Conservative bridge players are losing players, Wilbur Whitehead, international bridge expert, declared last night in a lecture on the game at the Missouri Athletic Association.

"Over-bidding is winning auction," he said. "Under-bidding is losing auction. I hasten to add, however, that I do not mean the lid is off for any sort of reckless bidding. What I mean is that the player with great courage and good judgment wins in the long run. The player with great courage but poor judgment is, of course, a scourge to his partners."

Forced to Explain Twice. Although he spoke to an audience which included many reputedly strong bridge players, Whitehead proved to be a step or two ahead of his hearers most of the evening and had to stop frequently and repeat, as he discouraged on the more fundamental truths of the game—points about which the average player rarely thinks.

For instance, he laid down the principle that for an initial bid in first or second hand two quick tricks and two probable tricks additional in trumps are all that is necessary—and then explained in terms of cold mathematics why the statement was true.

"Often times you will sit down with a partner who tells you that he never bids initially without two side tricks in addition to his trump holdings," Whitehead said. "That is pure trash. If he waits for that holding he is not bidding his hands for all they are worth."

Two Quick Tricks Enough. "I contend, and so does every expert of whom I know, that the holding of two quick tricks, even if they are in the trump, is sufficient for opening bid. A five-card suit headed by ace-king, for instance, has two quick tricks and the additional possibility of two trump tricks besides."

"Now see how it works out. With four probable tricks in my hand, I assume two for my partner, who has not yet bid, and one for what experts call the 'probability of play.' The total of tricks I may expect is then seven, or sufficient basis for an opening one-bid."

Whitehead cautioned that, in expecting two tricks of the partner and one from the play, he was going on the experience gained from studies of thousands of hands, carefully tabulated. Opening Bids Taken Out. "Incidentally," he continued, "in a study of hundreds of hands I found that 19 out of 20 opening bids were taken out in subsequent bidding so that the initial bidder need not fear being left in what seems to him a weak bid. When I made this same study I also surveyed 200 hands played at the Knickerbocker Club in New York in which the initial bidder opened with a minor suit declaration. I found that in every instance he was taken out."

Grape Juice Ice.

Mix one and a half pints of grape juice, a tumbler of orange juice and the juice of one large lemon. Add a cupful of sugar that has been dissolved in a half cupful of boiling water, then cooled. Turn into a vacuum freezer and stir down from the edges two or three times as it freezes, so that it is the same texture all the way through. If there is no freezer, put into a pudding mould, cover with paper and put on a tight cover, then pack in salt and ice for four or five hours to freeze. Turn occasionally, so that it does not freeze unevenly.

Loretto College Players Will Perform Masked in the Production of "Ronald Castlemain's Romance" at Webster Groves Sunday Evening.

By MARGUERITE MARTIN.

KEEPING abreast of the Little Theatre movement as is its purpose, the dramatic department of Loretto College for Women in Webster Groves, under the spirited sponsorship of Sister Marie Anthony, is giving a play in masks next Sunday evening at the college.

It is the first time so far as known that a revival of this ancient form of dramatic art has been attempted in St. Louis or its environs.

In professional productions, notably Eugene O'Neill's "Hairy Ape" and "The Great God Brown," masks have been employed in the presentation of roles partaking of the supernatural, fantastic, grotesque, symbolic or the exaggerated comic. In their modern adaptation masks are said to be particularly effective in the presentation of character and portraiture, and what is described as the decorative type of play.

Noted artists, Benda for one, are giving attention to the creation of character and portraiture, and what is described as the decorative type of play. The play is by Louise Armstrong and the masks were made especially for it by Harry W. Armstrong, both identified with the Little Theatre movement in Chicago.

QUICK changes, such as mistresses as each other, are made with surprising alacrity by changing masks instead of clothes, off stage, of course.

Many other comic and surprising effects are achieved and accentuated by the use of the masks. Two other short plays will be given the same evening. Though not a part of the money raising campaign—all friends and patrons of the institution being invited—the entertainment is in advance of and by way of stimulating interest in a carnival to be held at the college Feb. 11 and 12 which promises to be a stupendous affair, judging by plans under way. The students hope to raise $25,000 for their contribution to the $300,000 fund for a new dormitory building at the college, to which all local Catholic organizations are lending their efforts.

Wheatena Mould.

Make the wheatena the same as for breakfast, only just a little bit stiffer. When cooked stir in a cupful of seeded raisins, a half cupful of chopped nuts, a teaspoonful of vanilla, sugar to taste, and a dash of salt. Pour into individual moulds, and set in a cold place to stiffen and chill. Serve with whipped cream, or honey, or fruit juice, or plain.

Many ancient plays originally written to be performed in masks have been handed down. The one to be given by the Loretto Players, however, is a modern production.

FABLES for the FAIR

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall.

HOW HE LOVED HIS WIFE.

ONCE upon a time there was a man named George, who loved his wife, Naomi. He admitted it himself, early and often and even in the strangest circumstances—as you shall see. For her part, there was no question that she loved him. She had always loved him, from the time he came to her mother's house to woo her. Now, after seven years of marriage—

During which she had endured poverty cheerfully, made a happy home

And brought a fine young son into the world—

She saw George, not as the plump, middle-aged man he was. With a silly little fawn-colored mustache and a scanty supply of hair—

But as her lover, her husband, the father of her child. Knit into her life and her mind. She wanted, quite simply, the exclusive possession of this one man.

Given that, she would be perfectly happy! As for George, we have assured you that he loved his wife. He had no doubts of the fact. And, as he would have explained, "if he deceived her it was for her own comfort."

"And because heaven had made her a lovable but not a sensible woman."

So he conducted a lively little flirtation, behind Naomi's back. With her own sister Angela. A transparently cheap and treacherous and tantalizing little flirtation.

For Angela, there were no game laws and no close time. Her sister's husband was fair prey. She did all the old stuff—

For instance, she laid down the proposition, even to outsiders. That Naomi didn't UNDERSTAND her husband—

(With the obvious corollary that she—Angela—DID understand him)—

And that "poor George" wasn't very happy. She said that this plump, getting-to-be-laid person. Was "just like a big, delightful boy!"

She got that across to him, whenever they were together. It was not only her precocious youth and prettiness that appealed to George, But her trick of making him feel that he was renewing his youth. Oh, nothing much happened, barring a few kisses.

But you could scarcely have convinced catty little Angela. That George was in love with her sister and his wife, Naomi. About whom Angela made sarcastic inquiries whenever she had a rendezvous with George.

After Angela, came Hilda—Since George confessed to a fastidious distaste for loving THEIR men at out—

And he loved "poor little Hilda," although not—CERTAINLY not—as he loved his wife.

Hilda, too, made him feel young again. For she was conspicuously youthful and "youth calls to youth," George fathoms assured himself.

He got into a jam over the Hilda affair—

Even though the lady couldn't spell, she would write letters. One of them came ungummed in the mails. And Naomi read it before George—

She shouldn't have done so, but wives will do such things. Particularly when they have given previous cause for jealousy. Business of rage, grief, violent accusation from Naomi. George felt deeply injured. He didn't love his wife? Who could doubt it? He fled to Hilda, so that he might tell her so.

"Darling," he assured this young quid, "I don't believe I have ever made you realize—"

"Quite how splendid my wife is. She is the best wife a man ever had."

"And honestly I respect her more than I can say."

"Don't think I'm exaggerating. For this really comes from the bottom of my heart."

"I honestly does, dearest. I've a hundred faults, heaven knows."

"But insincerity isn't one of them. . . ."

"And I'm not a selfish man. For I'd give anything to save my wife a moment's pain."

"Anything that is, in reason. It was in Hilda's mind to ask, while the side of his panegyric was sweeping over him."

"Why, if you are so fond of her, do you come to me?"

Between herself and his wife. That was when Hilda made her bad break. Because, a few minutes afterward, George walked coldly away. And went to see Virginia, the back-slit girl.

To tell her that she was "the loveliest thing in the world."

And that, though he had been in love before.

"All the others had been mere hints of this glory."

Virginia, like Queen Victoria, was not amused.

Or rather—and unhappily for George—she WAS amused. And begged him not to be ridiculous.

In her eyes he read humor, mockery, maternal indulgence—

At last he was understood. Oh, well, in the end George went back home.

To the wife who loved him and whom he was convinced—loved.

If you don't believe it, you can read for yourselves the story we have summarized—

It's an admirably shrewd and absorbing new novel by Genial Bullett, called "The Fables."

A novel in which women find in all-too-truthful picture.

Of the difference between the love a woman gives.

And the love she receives—if she is married to a certain type of man. Loyalty is not in him, this husband of Robert Brownings' "My Wife."

The envelope should be addressed most carefully, in our "very brief" handwriting. That it should have on it every necessary item is especially important at this busy-for-the-postman time of the year.

Good taste dictates that no word on the envelope (except "Mr. and Mrs.") should be abbreviated. Write out the word "Street" or "Avenue" or "Road."

Also write out fully the name of the city, and also the name of the State. "Md." can easily be written to look like "Mo." and "N. Y." like "N. J."

Abbreviations indicate haste, and, too, are not sensible if we wish to assure the safe delivery of our cards.

It is no necessity to put any mark of punctuation at the end of the lines of the address. This call for "open punctuation," and a general use—days.

THE RING CEREMONY.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN: Is it correct for a girl to use the letter of her maiden name or the name-to-be in embroidering her trousseau?

In the ring ceremony, how should the gloves be worn?

A READER.

It is still considered the best taste for a girl to use the initials of her maiden name, and conserve the people do this. But there have come forth a modern element who think it is more "advanced" to use the initials of the name-to-be. And indeed it is "advanced," for it uses a name that is not yet known.

Just before the ring part of the ceremony, the bride may take off her glove and give it, with her bouquet, to her maid of honor, who is standing on her left. Or she may, before the day, have the third finger of the glove opened. Shops will do this, and later, when the glove is brought back, they will sew it up again.

THE PROPER ADDRESS.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman: In addressing Christmas cards, is it correct to use the expression "Mr. and Mrs. John Smith and family?"

Will you please give me any other suggestions about addressing the envelopes that inclose Christmas cards?

Thank you. P. S.

No, it is never correct to use the "blatant" term "and family" when we are addressing envelopes containing messages of any kind. It is too inclusive to be in good taste. Anyone with much individuality does not wish to hide his or her right under the expression "and family."

We all want to resolve individual messages, separate messages that mean that we personally were thought of.

And so, whenever it is possible, separate envelopes should be addressed to each son and daughter of a family, after a message has been addressed to "Mr. and Mrs. John Smith." This is true, not only for Christmas cards, but for all other cards and invitations and announcements.

If this sending of individual envelopes is too great a tax on the budgeting that you have laid down for the cards and envelopes, make a virtue of necessity and get around the difficulty with as much taste as possible. Then, if you are careful of your spacing on the envelope, you may write:

Mr. and Mrs. Clement Acker,
The Music Acker,
504 West Street,
Colorado Springs,
Colorado.

Or, perhaps you have cards enough so that you could send one to "Mr. and Mrs. —" and address the envelope to "Miss —" better address the one to the daughter to:

Miss Clara —

Also, it is correct to send each son of the family a separate card. You shall be very happy to give you some suggestions about addressing envelopes, for, to my mind, there are few social details more revealing of our breeding—or lack of it—than the way we address an envelope. And this is especially true of the envelopes that we send around such important messages as Christmas cards.

The envelope is the frame around the card, and, as you know, much of the beauty of the picture is brought out by the frame. The envelope represents that important "first impression" just as the wrapping of a Christmas present does.

The envelope should be addressed most carefully, in our "very brief" handwriting. That it should have on it every necessary item is especially important at this busy-for-the-postman time of the year.

But Hilda, knowing her oneness—and her boy friends—refrained. From the question which would have relieved her sorely tried patience.

She knew that the storm would pass.

The thunder of remorse and the lightning of eulogy.

She knew that only by praising Naomi, which made George feel generous.

Could he reconcile himself to his deception of her, which made him feel mean.

Nevertheless, Hilda was tactless enough to suggest, finally, that it looked as if George would have to choose.

Between herself and his wife.

That was when Hilda made her bad break.

A Terrible Escape

Disaster sometimes we can see
A blessing in disguise may be.
—Old Mother Nature.

CHATTERER the Red Squirrel was filled with despair. Already he was getting tired. Behind him came that terrible purr, Spite the Marten. Chatterer had escaped from more than one enemy by racing through the tree tops, but there was no escaping this way from Spite the Marten.

You know, Spite is just as good a traveler along the tree highways as is Chatterer. Chatterer's one hope was to reach a certain hole in a certain tree. It was looking more and more as if he wouldn't reach that certain hole in that certain tree.

Chatterer ran out on a branch near the top of a tree and made a flying jump for a branch near the top of another tree. He had already missed one such jump, but he couldn't stop to think of it. He had to make this jump or be caught right where he was. So he jumped.

Then something hit him. Yes, it, something hit him, and for a moment or two Chatterer didn't know anything more. When at last he did get his wits he discovered that he was on the ground under some brush at the foot of a tree. How he happened to be there he had no idea. That is, he had no idea at first. Then, as he got his breath, he peeked out, he began to understand. A great gray bird had alighted on the ground and facing it was Spite the Marten.

He did me a good turn. Mr. how I wish they'd get to fighting!"

Now, neither Spite the Marten nor Terror the Goshawk had seen just where Chatterer fell. Spite the Marten hadn't seen at all. He was just ready to spring from the top of a tree after Chatterer when there was the whirr of great wings and Terror the Goshawk shot in front of him. It was right then that Chatterer disappeared. Now Spite was accusing Terror of having robbed him of Chatterer, and Terror, whose temper is never of the best, was in a terrible rage because he had lost Chatterer. But neither of the two cared to attack the other. So they took it out in quarreling, and all this was giving Chatterer the wee bit of time he needed.

Boiled Custard.

Take a half cupful of condensed milk and dilute it with a cupful and a half of hot water. Bring to scalding point in double boiler, then pour slowly over three beaten egg yolks, mixing thoroughly. Return to the boiler and cook until it coats the spoon. Remove from the fire and add a quarter teaspoonful of salt and a teaspoonful of vanilla. Turn into a pretty serving dish and set to cool. Meantime, beat the whites of the eggs stiffly, adding five teaspoonfuls of powdered sugar. Drop by the spoonful on a slightly buttered baking dish and cook a delicate brown in a medium oven. Lift from the dish with a sharp knife and drop on top of the custard, then set to chill.

Caramel Junket.

Heat 2 cups milk until lukewarm. Caramelize $\frac{1}{4}$ cup sugar, add 1-cup boiling water and cook until the syrup is reduced to $\frac{1}{2}$ cup. Cool and add lukewarm milk very slowly. Add 1 junket tablet that has been dissolved in 1 teaspoon cold water, 1 teaspoon vanilla and a pinch of salt. Pour into sherbet glasses and let stand in a warm place until it has set. Then place in the refrigerator. Serve topped with sweetened whipped cream and ground nutmeg sprinkled over the cream. A maraschino cherry gives a note of color.

"I haven't any bones broken," thought Chatterer, "but I'm terribly tired and I haven't much wind left. If those two fellows will keep on quarrelling out there perhaps I can get away. I guess if Terror hadn't knocked me in here Spite would have caught me. Yes, sir, I almost know Spite would have caught me. I never expected to be thankful for anything from Terror the Goshawk, but he did me a good turn this time. Yes, sir, he did me a good turn. Mr. how I wish they'd get to fighting!"

Now, neither Spite the Marten nor Terror the Goshawk had seen just where Chatterer fell. Spite the Marten hadn't seen at all. He was just ready to spring from the top of a tree after Chatterer when there was the whirr of great wings and Terror the Goshawk shot in front of him. It was right then that Chatterer disappeared. Now Spite was accusing Terror of having robbed him of Chatterer, and Terror, whose temper is never of the best, was in a terrible rage because he had lost Chatterer. But neither of the two cared to attack the other. So they took it out in quarreling, and all this was giving Chatterer the wee bit of time he needed.

New Hats of Straw
Have Velvet Trim

WINTER time is spring hat time for the Paris milliners who decide what shall be worn at Easter. They have already presented some spring models of straw which have attracted attention.

Combination of velvet and straw is the surprise of these first spring hats, which will be worn on the Riviera, at Palm Beach and winter resorts where summer clothes are in order.

Camille Roger shows some pretty models which combine velvet and straw. Some of them follow the winter line of felt hats and are cut up in front to disclose one eye only. Molyneux shows fairly large hats of straw and velvet, with the velvet used in flat bands around the brim and repeated in a band and bow.

Jane Blanchot is showing a great deal of navy blue in her new spring models. The hat which Mistinguett, the music hall artist, wore at a millinery competition recently, was made of dark blue grosgrain ribbon in a cap shape fitted closely to the sides of the face covering the ears. On one side was a large white velvet flower fixed so that it fell against Mistinguett's cheek.

When marking linens of any sort, draw the letters with a lead pencil and trace exactly on this line with the marking ink. Then the ink will not spread.

Teaching Children Thrift

By Emilie Hoffman

MUCH is said, written and read about this thrift this week. The word thrift naturally suggests saving of money, and our school children are being strongly urged to start school bank accounts. If you have not formed the good habit of giving your children a small sum of money each week to deposit in the school bank this is a good week to start.

One mother "cannot see any sense in Thrift Week." In her opinion "it only puts notions in children's heads and makes them dissatisfied." She says, "Our boy keeps dunning us every week for banking and we have no money to spare to give our children for school banking."

Even a few pennies deposited each week would satisfy this child. It would encourage him to save money and lay a foundation for thrift. There are many opportunities for a school child to earn a few cents a week by running errands, etc., and this mother would do well to encourage her child to put the pennies he earns into the school bank rather than spend them for candy.

However, thrift is not necessarily a cash item. There are manifold opportunities for thrift in our daily activities. Children will get a better understanding of this general thrift if they are told it means not to waste, and thinking parents will find many a lesson to teach their children from this standpoint. These parents will not only take advantage of this one week that is each year so assiduously devoted to the thrift campaign, but they will persistently continue to impress upon their children that thrift is very essential to their happiness and in making a success of life, and that this means they must never waste anything.

If every parent would instill this idea into their children so that they would clearly understand that disaster and possible hardships are the result of waste, thrift would become a country-wide habit. You have, no doubt, admonished your children against the waste of food, waste of time and waste of money. It will be a new idea to connect health with thrift, and they will become interested when you tell them that they waste their health when they lose sleep, eat improper foods, neglect their bodily needs, fail to protect themselves against weather changes, expose themselves to the dangers from communicable diseases, etc. Lay stress upon the fact that mishaps and misfortune follow waste, while the results of thrift are always good and profitable.

There are so many items of

Paris Wears Wings
Instead of Flowers

TWO little cloth wings, meant to be worn on the shoulder of evening frocks instead of flowers, are a suggestion of Jeanne Lanvin which Paris seems to like.

The wings are made of the same material as the dress, sometimes combining two colors. They are long enough and filmy enough to flutter with any motion.

thrift that will suggest themselves to the intelligent mother. School children, especially, should be warned against the waste in education and educational advantages. This is a large field to cover and it has many possibilities for the parent endeavoring to establish thrift as a habit in the family.

The greatest help in successfully training children is parental example, and nowhere is this of greater importance and value than in training children to form the habit of thrift.

Don't Let Them Freeze.

Vegetables and fruits should be kept in the coolest and driest part of the cellar. Many of us who have outside kitchens or sheds resent the extra steps, but it takes just one freezing cold night to ruin many things that have cost quite a few pennies, so the few extra steps are certainly worth the trouble.

GOOD THINGS TO EAT

Escalloped Clams.

Put 5 bull clams through the meat grinder along with 1 onion and 1 green pepper. Add to this 1 tablespoonful chopped parsley.

Bring clam juice to a boil, skim and add enough milk to make a pint. Blend 3 tablespoonfuls butter, 3 tablespoonfuls flour and add to the clam juice. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly until nice and smooth. Add clams, salt and pepper. Pour into a buttered casserole. On top pour 3 cups buttered crumbs. Bake until a nice brown on top.

Maple Pecan Rolls.

Place one cup maple syrup in a deep pan. Make a dough of two cups of flour, four teaspoonfuls baking powder, one teaspoonful salt, two tablespoonfuls butter, three-quarters cup milk. Roll out to one-quarter-inch thickness. Spread with butter, sugar, pecan meats and cinnamon. Roll as for jelly roll and cut into pieces. Stand side by side in the pan with the maple syrup, the cut sides down. Bake in a hot oven from 15 to 20 minutes.

When putting raisins, figs, dates, etc., through the food chopper, first squeeze some lemon juice into the chopper and then put the fruit through. It will prevent the fruit from sticking to the grinder.

CALICO CLEARED, STATE MAY DROP PALAZZOLO CASE

Likely to Dismiss Indictments Against Eight Others Accused of Italian Gang Murder.

SHOWDOWN LOOKED FOR NEXT MONDAY

Defense Will Then Apply for Release on Bond of Clients Who Are Still in Custody.

Following the acquittal last night of Ralph Calico, Russo gangster, tried for the murder of Alphonse Palazzolo, Giannola gang leader and extortionist, a showdown likely to result in indictments against eight other men for the same killing will be held.

Circuit Attorney Sidener refused to discuss his plans, but he undoubtedly will come Monday when counsel for the defendants will apply for the release on bond of those now in custody. Of the eight still under indictment, two have never been apprehended, two are out on bond, three are in the city jail and one is in city hospital, recovering from a bullet wound. Sigmund Bass, defense attorney, today conferred with Circuit Judge Killoran about bond and was told to put his request in the form of a motion.

The State had elected to try Calico first, considering the case against him to be the strongest. With Calico freed, the first prosecution growing out of the 16 Italian gang murders in the last six months has ended in failure. There have been no indictments in the other 15 killings, but one man is held without bond awaiting grand jury action in the murder of Ben Amata, an associate of Palazzolo.

Unrequited for Violence.

The Palazzolo case has been unpopular locally for the violence attending it. His assassination at Tenth and Wash streets, Sept. 9, was accepted as a reprisal for his having instigated the killing of Tony Russo and Vincent Spicuzza, Aug. 2, starting the present feud. Since Palazzolo's murder, there have been attacks and counter attacks which have terrorized Italian residents in the downtown district on "The Hill" and throughout St. Louis and vicinity.

Among those murdered were two of the men indicted with Calico. They were Dominic Cataldo and Tony DiTapani, owners of the supper store in front of which Palazzolo was riddled with bullets. Another under indictment, Jack Griffin, was shot and seriously wounded. A witness in the Palazzolo case, Pasquale Santino, was murdered. The State's star witness, Alex Weber, a Negro, caused the arrest of an Italian he charged with intimidating him, and this case is still pending.

Heavy Police Guard.

Monday when Calico went to trial before Circuit Judge Killoran 10 policemen guarded the courtroom and corridors and rode about the Municipal Courts Building with sub-machine guns and revolvers ready for use. Persons entering the courtroom were searched for weapons.

Some of the men summoned for jury service were not anxious to serve. Witnesses were nervous. Their nervousness was not lessened by the fact that the two surviving Russo brothers, William and Lawrence, under indictment with Calico, occupied front rows and scowled at the witnesses.

Excitement reached its peak late yesterday when the case went to the jury after Assistant Circuit Attorney Maroney had denounced the Italian gangsters as bootleggers, extortionists and murderers, and defense attorneys, Verne Lacy and Sigmund Bass, had accused the State of "framing" testimony against Calico.

Two Italian women began quarreling and were ejected from the building. All spectators were ordered to leave the courtroom.

Jurors Sidelined.

After two hours' deliberation, the jury returned its verdict of not guilty at 6:45 o'clock. The jurors hurried away, refusing to discuss their action.

Calico, dropping his air of immovability, became the volatile young man he really is. He changed bugs and kisses with his father and moved triumphantly into the courtroom where he was cheered by Italians who had taken shoulders to the street.

Last night there was celebration in some Italian circles. In other places there was quiet-ominous quiet. It is generally understood the feud is not over. Both the Giannola and Russo factions have
